

Malagasy demands rent Tracking base to close

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space agency said Friday it will close its tracking station in the Malagasy Republic on Monday, the day before the scheduled twin launches of American and Russian spacecraft for a rendezvous in space.

The announcement by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration was made after Malagasy President Didier Ratsiraka said he had placed the NASA station under military control and may shut it down for nonpayment of rent before the Apollo-Soyuz flight.

"It has not been possible to conclude a new agreement acceptable to both NASA and the Malagasy government," the NASA announcement said.

But the space agency said closing the station would not interfere with its operations because it can use other facilities.

"It won't affect the mission in the least," said Chester M. Lee, the American program director for the joint mission. "If the station is there we will use it. Otherwise, there will be no impact on the mission."

The space agency can use an Applications Technology Satellite to relay communications from the Apollo spacecraft to a ground station. The Malagasy station is one of 14 such ground stations and can be bypassed because of the satellite.

Ratsiraka, leader of the military government of the island formerly known as Madagascar, said in a radio broadcast that the station would be closed down unless the United States submitted proposals judged satisfactory by his government before Monday. He said he placed the station under military control to avoid working for space agency contractors in Malagasy. There also are a number of dependents, but NASA said it did not know immediately how many.

"We were told by the embassy today that all NASA personnel are okay, and the Malagasy government has guaranteed the safety of personnel and material," the space agency said. The American agreement with Malagasy dates to 1963 and was extended again in December 1973.

"The government raised the question of substantial back payment for use of the station retroactive to 1963," a NASA spokesman said. "We could not agree to it and as a result the government of the Malagasy Republic has asked us to close the station."

The Apollo-Soyuz flight is due to start Tuesday.

The station, run by Bendix Corp. for NASA, is a major ground contact point for manned and unmanned space missions. It was set up in 1964, to replace a previous base in the northwest part of the island.

About 200 local employees work at the base, which among other functions receives photographs from meteorological satellites.

When Ratsiraka was foreign minister in 1973, he suggested the station could be run from about 1976 by the Madagascar posts and telegraphs administrations and be entirely staffed by local personnel.

U.S.-Jordan missile deal

WASHINGTON — The Ford administration informed key members of Congress Friday that it would sell Jordan a modern air-defense system costing about $350 million, more than three times what had initially been disclosed.

A letter to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the speaker of the House revealed plans to sell 14 batteries of Hawk ground-to-air missiles, with a sale price of about $260 million and eight batteries of Vulcan anti-aircraft guns costing about $90 million.

In addition, it was learned from administration officials that the United States would sell Jordan about 300 shoulder-fired Redeye anti-aircraft missiles for about $4 million.

When it was disclosed in

The proposed sale resulted in immediate expressions of concern on Capitol Hill.

Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, the ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, introduced a resolution on this year. Congress has not tried to block any military sales.

Case, in his statement, expressed particular concern over the "rather large" number of Hawk missiles involved and the fact that they would be mobile and not fixed in place.

He said that mobile Hawks, which are similar to the Soviet SAM-6, can be used in support of advancing ground forces. He also said he was upset because the administration's letter to Congress did not include mention of the sale of the highly portable Redeyes because the amount was less than $25 million.

The Redeyes, which weigh about 28 pounds, are effective against helicopters and slow-flying planes.

The Israelis have also complained privately about the sale.

The Jordanians have been seeking an up-to-date air defense system for many years. King Hussein has said one reason for Jordan's refusal to participate directly in the Arab war against Israel in October 1973 was a lack of air defense.

Exclusive N.Y. Times Service

May that the U.S. would sell Hawk missiles to Jordan, administration officials told newsmen and Israelis that the total sales would amount to about $100 million. There was no explanation for the larger figure.

Monday to kill the sale.

Under a law adopted last year, any proposed military sale of $25 million or more must be reported to Congress, which then has 20 days to act. If it takes no action, the sale is allowed to proceed. So far

Cheap food era over, FTC says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An era of cheap food prices for Americans has ended, the Federal Trade Commission said Saturday.

"The era of low food prices and declining food prices is at an end," FTC economist Russell Parker said at a news briefing. "Food is going to be more dear than in the past."

The FTC in a special report on food chain profits said there was a 45 per cent rise in consumer food prices since 1972. Parker and FTC economic chief Frederic M. Scherer said supermarkets increased profit margins from about 0.8 per cent on the food dollar to 1.4 per cent on total sales from 1972 to 1974.

But two dollar devaluations eroded consumer purchasing power by at least 20 per cent and energy costs rose 400 per cent in 1974 alone, driving up food chain operating costs. Labor costs also rose, but at a slower rate than in previous years.

Compounding these price pressures was a move by major supermarkets in 1974 to return to profit levels experienced in the 1960s and early 1970s, the spokesmen said.

The FTC study said supermarket profits took a sharp decline in 1972 and 1973 largely because most stores had to match price discounting efforts of A&P, the nation's largest group.

By 1974, however, the effects of the A&P experiment were largely complete and competitors raised prices to match pre-1972 profit levels.

Net profits after taxes on stockholder equity for supermarkets with annual sales of $1 billion or more ranged from 10.1 per cent to 11.9 per cent in the seven years preceding the A&P discount experiment in 1972. Profits dipped to 6.8 per cent in 1973 and rose to 9.5 per cent in 1974.

FTC spokesmen said complete data was not yet available for 1974, but preliminary information indicates that profit levels except for A&P — which has gross losses for the period — resumed the 11 to 12 per cent range.

McDonnell readying DC10 design change

A modification kit to bring McDonnell Douglas DC10 jumbo jets up to specifications announced Friday by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) is now being prepared and could be ready for installation this fall, according to a Douglas Aircraft Co. spokesman.

His announcement came just hours after FAA officials ordered that major design changes be made in all American jumbo jets to improve their ability to withstand depressurization in flight.

The order affecting the DC10, Lockheed L1011 and Boeing 747 must be complied with by Dec. 31, 1977, officials said.

FAA officials said the design changes were intended to prevent the kind of damage that led to the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC10 outside Paris in May 1974. All 346 persons aboard were killed in the accident, labeled the worst air crash in history.

Friday's directive stipulated that all jumbo jets be modified so they can withstand the stress of major damage, fly and safely land with a 20-foot-square hole in the fuselage.

Though French officials have not yet completed their investigation of the Turkish airliner crash, authorities believe the accident occurred after an improperly closed cargo door blew off the plane in flight.

The resulting, sudden depressurization of the plane caused the passenger compartment floor to buckle, jamming control cables and causing the plane to crash, authorities believe.

Ford vows tight economic reins

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Ford said Friday night he sees all signs pointing toward economic recovery and vowed to veto any congressional moves to "spend the American people into more headaches and heartaches."

Ford, in his first speech outside Washington since declaring his 1976 candidacy, appeared to be sounding a campaign theme and was interrupted 20 times by loud and enthusiastic applause from an audience of about 500 Chicago business leaders.

He served notice he would stick with the same basic policies he has been following to restore the nation's economic health.

He boasted those policies have cut inflation to about 6 per cent from twice that rate a year ago and expressed hope that Americans soon would see a fall in unemployment, currently running at close to 9 per cent nationwide.

"If we are to avoid new, perhaps worse inflation than ever before, then our recovery policies must be based on fiscal restraint," Ford said.

Ford came to Chicago from his home state of

Two Southland fires racing out of control

Associated Press

More than 400 men were called in Friday to battle two fast-moving brush fires burning out of control in San Bernardino and Riverside Counties.

One blaze had consumed more than 150 acres eight miles east of Perris and was a potential threat to a mobile home park, the California Division of Forestry said. The second fire had burned more than 250 acres in the San Bernardino National Forest six miles north of Lake Arrowhead but posed no danger to the popular mountain resort.

The CDF said the fire near Perris was burning near a mobile home park but fire crews had cut a 60-foot firebreak and were successful in preventing the blaze from reaching the trailers.

The fire erupted about 3 p.m. and was burning on two fronts "which is giving our men trouble," a fire official said. About 100 men, three fixed-wing airplanes and more than a dozen ground tankers were on the scene. There was no estimate on when the blaze would be controlled. Cause of the fire was not known.

The second fire, near Lake Arrowhead, was burning away from the tourist area and posed no problems to structures, fire officials said. It broke out in the early afternoon and had consumed more than 250 acres of brush in three hours.

More than 300 men from the U.S. Forest Service and CDF were on the fire lines in 100-degree temperatures on the east slopes of the mountain range. Eight fixed-wing planes, three helicopters and two other support aircraft were brought in to fight the fire. Cause of the blaze was not known.

The hot, dry air provided little aid to fire fighters, and weather forecasters offered little relief for the weekend.

A chance of showers in mountain areas was forecast through the weekend, with temperatures ranging from the mid-70s at the beaches to the mid-90s in inland valleys.

Butterfield role debated

CIA spying controversy spreads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Controversy over the issue of possible CIA infiltration of the White House spread Friday after retired Air Force Col. L. Fletcher Prouty said former presidential aide Alexander Butterfield had been a CIA contact officer.

Later, one of the sources cited by Prouty as the basis for his claim flatly denied the account. "I'm saying it's not true," the source — who asked to remain anonymous — told The Associated Press.

What was meant by a contact officer remained unclear, but under repeated questioning by reporters, Prouty ruled out the possibility that Butterfield might have spied on the White House for the CIA.

Meanwhile, the CIA issued a statement saying that Butterfield, who first revealed the existence of the White House tapes, "has never been assigned to or worked for the CIA in any capacity."

The agency acknowledged that during his military career and his years in the White House, Butterfield was permitted access to sensitive agency information, but insisted that he "was in no way under the authority of the agency."

Butterfield could not be reached for comment.

Prouty, who testified before investigators for the House Intelligence Committee, said he first learned of a CIA-Butterfield connection in 1971 from two Air Force officers who had worked for the CIA for long periods of time.

According to Prouty, the officers suggested that Prouty contact Butterfield, then an aide to White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, for help on a project involving Indochina prisoners of war, through a Washington public relations firm with CIA contacts.

Prouty refused to identify the two former Air Force officers publicly. But one of the officers located by a reporter denied ever telling Prouty that Butterfield was the CIA contact man.

The officer, now retired and working as a Washington lobbyist, acknowledged that he had suggested to Prouty that he contact the public relations firm of Mullen & Co. for help in getting publicity for his POW project.

But the retired officer, who claimed he had never served in any intelligence capacity, said that at the time he had no awareness of Mullen & Co.'s CIA connection and made no suggestion that it be used as a means of contacting Butterfield.

Asked to respond, Prouty said the other former Air Force officer had told him that Butterfield was a CIA contact man and that he had merely asked the second officer for advice in reaching Butterfield.

"He didn't even ask me that," the officer replied when told of Prouty's explanation.

The controversy began Friday morning when Prouty, a former liaison officer between the Air Force and the CIA, said in a television interview with

Mrs. Peron fires top aide in furor

Combined News Services

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — President Maria Estela "Isabel" Peron Friday accepted the resignation of her powerful cabinet minister and confidante Jose Lopez Rega, the most controversial man in the Argentine government. The president's office also announced the resignations of the ministers of interior, defense and justice, shaking up half her cabinet in an effort to overcome widespread criticism of government political and economic policies. Leading members of Mrs. Peron's own party have accused Lopez Rega — whose fascination with astrology has earned him the nickname "The Sorcerer" — of backing a right-wing death squad police have blamed for kidnapping and murdering scores of leftists. A nationwide general strike paralyzed Argentina Monday and Tuesday to protest the plan, ending when Mrs. Peron authorized wage increases averaging 100 per cent for all industries.

Economic crash program

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson curbed wage, price and dividend raises Friday in a crash program he said was designed to save Britain from "general economic catastrophe." But the Labor government's anti-inflationary plan stopped short of immediate measures to penalize anyone breaking the new rules. Wilson's emergency package provided a maximum $13.20 weekly limit on all pay increases for 12 months beginning Aug. 1, an immediate 10 per cent limit on all price and dividend hikes, and a holddown on state cash for the nationalized industries and local municipal authorities.

Jets collide, kill 4

MURCIA, Spain — Four Spanish military jets practicing formation flying for an air show collided and burst into flames, plunging into the Mediterranean Sea and killing all five occupants. "We could not believe what we were watching," said a farmer living in the vicinity of San Jaier Air Force Academy, where the Spanish-made Saeta type aircraft had taken off minutes before to rehearse for the exhibition today. It was the second such collision in the 20-year-history of the academy, Spain's only air force school with an enrollment of more than 1,500 cadets. Fourteen Spanish military were killed when two three-engine planes crashed in the air during a parachuting exercise in June 1965.

Angola fighting kills 200

LUANDA, Angola — As many as 200 persons may have been killed in renewed fighting in Angola in the past two days, breaking a truce signed in Kenya last month. The clashes between two rival black liberation movements ended weeks of peace in the capital of this African nation, which has been racked by bitter urban warfare since January. Unofficial estimates have put the death toll in fighting this year at more than 2,000. The groups are longtime tribal and political enemies, and during their war for independence they fought each other as fiercely as they fought the Portuguese.

House panel OKs arms for Turkey

WASHINGTON — The House International Relations Committee voted Friday to repeal the embargo on U.S. arms shipments to Turkey, but stipulated that any new sales made on credit cannot be completed until later this year. By a 16-11 vote, the committee approved a bill that would allow delivery of $185 million in weapons that Turkey contracted for before Congress imposed the embargo against the administration's wishes Feb. 5. The legislation also would authorize President Ford to approve the sale of additional military equipment needed by Turkey to fulfill its North Atlantic Treaty Organization commitments. However, equipment sold on credit could not be delivered until Congress enacts separate foreign aid legislation sometime later in the year. The limitation is designed to give Congress an opportunity to see if limited resumption of arms shipments will prompt Turkey to negotiate a Cyprus peace settlement before full-scale shipments are resumed.

AF grounds new F15s

WASHINGTON — The Air Force said Friday it was grounding all 34 of its new $14.4-million F15 fighter planes because of an oil contamination problem. It was the fourth type of major U.S. warplane to be grounded by the Air Force or Navy since June 2 because of engine or other technical problems. Many of these planes remain grounded.

Food given to poor to free U.S. colonel

Combined News Services

The Lebanese government began distributing 10 tons of free food to residents of Beirut's "Slaughterhouse" slum district Friday in an apparent bid for the freedom of a kidnapped American Army colonel. But the distribution fell far short of ransom demands and there was no word on his fate.

Five tons of sugar and five tons of rice were brought by two trucks hired by the National Relief Agency to the Maslakh or Slaughterhouse district, the area where the kidnapers of U.S. Army Col. Ernest Morgan have demanded American aid.

The kidnapers have threatened to kill the 43-year-old officer from Petersburg, Va., unless the U.S. government complied with their demands for hundreds of tons of rice, sugar, flour, margarine and other foodstuffs, together with clothing and building materials, before this afternoon.

A U.S. Embassy official said he knew nothing about the food distribution which is "purely a Lebanese affair." It has been American policy not to comply with ransom demands because such a precedent might endanger other diplomats and Americans living abroad.

The bags of food bore Italian markings. An official with the relief agency, formed after factional fighting devastated some city suburbs last month, said they had been purchased by Lebanon's government in accordance with Premier Rashid Karami's vow to aid battle-torn areas.

The food distribution recalled the Patty Hearst case in California. Kidnapers of the American newspaper heiress last year asked for a $6-million food program for her release, but her father, Randolph Hearst, said he could not afford it and $2 million worth of food was given away.

All negotiations for the release of Morgan had been left in the hands of the Lebanese government, which enlisted the aid of moderate Palestinian guerrilla groups in a massive search for his kidnapers.

Sandy Allen, the world's tallest woman, has a big problem — how to get a passport in time to go to Italy Monday to appear in a film about Casanova with Donald Sutherland.

Miss Allen, at 7-feet-5 and 5/16 inches recognized by the Guinness Book of World Records as the world's tallest woman, has been asked to appear in the Federico Fellini film as a young giantess with whom Casanova falls in love.

"Right now I don't know if I'm going to be able to make it," Miss Allen, 20, of Shelbyville, Ind., said Friday in Indianapolis. "I've been trying to get a passport the past two days and I've been told so many things I don't know what to believe."

Miss Allen said her one concern was that the film might be X-rated and call for a nude scene. She has never seen an X-rated movie and doesn't think she would want to be in one.

Haldeman

Although he said the jury verdict "went against the weight of the evidence," a federal judge in Charlotte, N.C., refused Friday to grant a new trial in a lawsuit involving H.R. Haldeman and three other former White House aides.

U.S. District Judge James McMillan, who tried the case, upheld the jury's decision to dismiss the $1-million civil suit against Haldeman, White House chief of staff under former President Richard Nixon, the advance men, and local officials. It was brought by a group that demonstrated outside an Oct. 15, 1971, rally honoring evangelist Billy Graham. Nixon attended the rally.

Alioto

The 9th U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco Friday delayed its decree ordering a third trial of Mayor Joseph Alioto's $12.5-million libel suit against the now-defunct Look Magazine. The court granted the stay, pending an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court by Cowles Communications, publishers of Look.

A 1969 article in Look purported to link Alioto to the Mafia. The stay said Cowles had until Aug. 14 to present its petition to the U.S. Supreme Court. A ruling on the matter is not expected until October, according to a Cowles attorney.

The first trial on Alioto's suit ended in a hung jury. The jury in the second trial found the article false and defamatory, but was unable to agree whether the story had been published with malice.

Busy

R. Buckminster Fuller, the architect, engineer and educator who invented the geodesic dome, will be 80 today but said he is too busy working to do any unusual celebrating.

Tonight, in one of CBS' "Bicentennial Minutes," he points out that age doesn't necessarily limit a man's ability to work. Fuller said that 200 years ago Benjamin Franklin, then 69 years old, attended a 6 a.m. meeting to plan the defense of Philadelphia, was in Congress from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., took time out to plan a gunpowder factory and arranged to mine for lead bullets, approved the printing of Continental money, and worked on a draft of his personal plan for independence of the colonies.

U.S. District Judge John Sirica, as he has for several major Watergate figures, Friday in Washington erased the remaining sentences of the four Cuban-Americans who actually bugged Democratic Party headquarters three years ago.

Patient card

I have written to the Long Beach Veterans Hospital twice in the past two years for a patient data card. I got a postcard back telling me a new type of card was being issued early this year but I still don't have one. Can you expedite this for me? W.W.E., Santa Ana.

A LITTLE LEARY.

WIVES ARE TO BLAME FOR HUSBANDS LYING... THEY ASK THE QUESTIONS

You can get a patient data card only after you receive treatment either as a clinic outpatient or a hospital inpatient at a VA treatment facility, according to a VA hospital spokesman. However, since you have never been a VA patient, we don't know why you feel you need a card. The cards are used to imprint patients' names, addresses, Social Security numbers and information pertinent to their medical treatment on hospital forms. They have no signatures and aren't suitable for identification purposes outside the hospital. The spokesman suggested that you might be referring to a fee-basis ID card which is issued to veterans with service connected disabilities who can't come to a VA facility because of distance or severity of disability. A veteran with one of these cards can go to a private doctor of his choice and the doctor will bill the VA for the care. The card serves as proof of eligibility for VA paid care. For information on getting one of these cards, write to the Veterans Administration Outpatient Clinic, 425 S. Hill St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013.

Disabled dog

I bought a dog from the Doctor Pet Center at the Del Amo Mall in Torrance about six months ago and paid more than $200 for it. Lately its back legs have been giving out and X-rays show it has hip displacement. The veterinarian said this is an inherited problem and the dog will have to be put to sleep. The dog has an 18-month warranty and I've asked the pet shop for another animal. I was told to take the dog to their vet for a second set of X-rays for positive proof of the disability and that the bill would be taken care of. Their doctor charged me $45 and the pet shop has refused to pay the bill. The first set of X-rays cost me $35. Can you help me? My dog is getting worse every day. D.R.V., Torrance.

We contacted Les Lutz, manager of Doctor Pet Center, who said they were not responsible for the second vet's bill, but because you misunderstood or were misinformed, he offered to give you merchandise worth half of what you paid their doctor. You have now exchanged the dog for a healthy one and are satisfied with the transaction.

Juniority

Is it proper for a man who is a junior to continue to use the "Jr." on his name after his father's death? A.M., Garden Grove.

The matter, apparently, is of no consequence as far as either etiquette or the law is concerned. "Emily Post's Etiquette" simply suggests the matter be decided on the basis of practicality; retain the "Jr." if dropping it might be apt to cause confusion in the identity of the father and son or between the son's wife and his mother.

Paper work

I'd like to know what can be done with old magazines. I understand that the paper companies that buy old newspapers won't buy them. I have so many that I can't put them out for the trash pickup because they would be too heavy. Mrs. M.P., Bellflower.

Coastal Scrap and Paper Co., 1404 Hayes Ave., buys old magazines for recycling as well as old newspapers, with demand growing for the latter. They pay less for magazines because they aren't as readily recyclable as newsprint - it takes longer to turn them into pulp, thus boosting the cost of labor, according to Don Tankard, owner of the scrap and paper firm. He pays $4 a ton for magazines and $8 a ton for newsprint. Buying hours are 8 a.m. to noon Monday through Saturday. You can also sell old newspapers, corrugated paper and computer cards and paper to the Independent Paper Stock Co., 2485 E. 68th St. They pay $10 a ton for newsprint and corrugated paper. Phone them at 633-4601 for their latest price. Their hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and 8 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Eligibility

My sister-in-law reached the age of 65 in February. She has registered for Social Security, but since she continues to work she does not receive any payments. She is on what they call suspended Social Security. Is she entitled to the special $50 payment sent to all Social Security recipients this year? She has not received it. S.E.S., Long Beach.

Since your sister-in-law still is employed and does not yet receive any Social Security benefits, she is not eligible for the $50 supplement, according to a spokesman for the Long Beach Social Security office. In order to be eligible for the $50 she would have had to be unemployed and receiving benefits as of March of this year, he said.

5 arrested in L.B. for brewing drug

Five persons arrested in a Long Beach home while they allegedly brewed up a batch of the illegal drug PCP have been arraigned before a U.S. magistrate in Los Angeles.

Two others, also arrested in the house at 4768 Malta St. were released by authorities who said they apparently were not connected with the operation. One of the two is a quadriplegic.

The seven were arrested soon after midnight Thursday by a team of Long Beach and federal agents who surrounded the house.

Entering, they allegedly found a pot simmering on the stove containing phenylcyclidine—PCP—worth an estimated $20,000.

Arraigned before Magistrate James J. Penne on a charge of attempted manufacture of a controlled substance were Richard Grofu, 28; Howard Grusmith, 29; and Lawrence Jones, 31. They were ordered held under $5,000 pending a July 31 preliminary hearing.

Trashmen hit working conditions

By KRIS SIHERMAN

Long Beach sanitation workers staged a four-hour "wildcat strike" Friday in protest of what they termed "poor working conditions."

Officials said most of the city's 222 garbage truck drivers, helpers and street sweeper operators refused to begin work as scheduled at 7 a.m. The city's 58 refuse trucks and street sweepers sat idle as more than 50 teamsters picketed the sanitation department headquarters at 2901 E. Willow St.

The men worked a half-day, however, after City Manager John R. Mansell said management would not negotiate with the men—represented by Teamsters Union Local 886—until they returned to their jobs.

Though early reports indicated the sanitation workers were striking for more money, union steward Joe Polk later said the men were "more concerned with our working conditions."

"This is not a spur-of-the-moment thing," he said. "It's something that's been festering and boiling for a long time, and it finally reached the point where we felt we had to do something."

Polk, who has worked in the city sanitation department for 12 years, said the men were most unhappy about a new city directive that they make three, rather than two, garbage runs per day.

"We're already working at a very fast pace—much faster than normal," he said. "A lot of the men skip lunch, or eat it on the run, so they can get their routes picked up by the end of the shift. Some don't even take coffee breaks."

Following a late afternoon negotiating session with city officials, the workers agreed to work today—at straight time—in order to finish Friday's scheduled trash pickups. They are to report to work as usual Monday.

Early Friday, Mansell called the walkout "another example of wildcat unionism by the Teamsters." Following the negotiations, however, he said he believed the short-lived strike was the result of "misinterpretation" of the city directive on the part of the workers.

Mansell said that each two-man garbage team currently makes two runs per day, picking up an average of eight tons of garbage per load (32,000 pounds per day).

City trucks, however, are certified to carry only 14,750 pounds, Mansell said, adding that city drivers had recently been receiving citations from the Highway Patrol for overloading the vehicles.

"Under state law, if a city truck is overloaded, the driver must pay the fine, because he's the one who is cited," Mansell said. "We thought we had a solution to the problem," he added.

"We didn't ask anyone to increase his work load by 50 per cent. We asked the men to make two-and-a-half runs per day, rather than two."

Mansell said the workers are to carry the same amount of garbage in three (or two-and-a-half) trips as they now do in two, so as not to overload the trucks.

Polk, nevertheless, claimed the addition of another run would create more work, regardless of whether the workers were still handling the same amount of garbage."

Polk charged that the city doesn't enforce its own regulations governing refuse pick up. "If someone doesn't tie up their garbage correctly, we're not supposed to pick it up. But if we don't, someone complains and we get in trouble," he said.

Both Polk and Mansell agreed that wages were "not a primary issue" in Friday's union action. Polk, however, said the workers do believe they deserve more than they are currently paid and would like to receive higher wages.

Drivers currently earn $1,185 per month ($14,220 per year) while their helpers are paid $1,075 per month ($12,900 a year). The workers received a seven per cent wage hike July 1 and are due to receive another three per cent in January, Mansell said.

Though Mansell seemed confident that the sanitation workers' complaints were largely a matter of "misinterpretation," and could be easily worked out, Polk said "things are still pending" and indicated the men could walk out again.

Both men said workers would report to their jobs as usual Monday.

They said another negotiating session has been scheduled between the two parties Monday.

Brown denies Davis' claim of pot peril

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Brown defended the state's new marijuana law Friday and disputed a claim by the Los Angeles police chief that it would increase crime and the number of heroin addicts.

Responding to arguments by Chief Ed Davis that the new measure will make remaining marijuana laws "totally unenforceable," Brown told reporters:

"Chief Davis is a good friend of mine. I've spoken to him about his concerns. I don't think they're well founded. I think the marijuana bill is a modest adjustment to bring the law into conformity with what is already the practice."

governor said, referring to the San Diego financier convicted recently of campaign and securities violations. Smith was also fined in the case.

"I don't know if 10 years for an ounce of marijuana can be equated with not one day for $27 million."

Nevada nets $82.5 million from gambling

CARSON CITY (AP) — The state of Nevada raked in $82.5 million in taxes last fiscal year from its billion-dollar casino industry, the state Gaming Control Board reported.

Chairman Phil Hannifin said Friday the take for the year ending June 30 marked an 11 per cent increase in yearly tax revenues flowing into state coffers.

The gambling tax revenues pay roughly half the cost of running state government.

"This shows that the state, during an uncertain economic period, was able to capitalize on its main tourist attraction," Hannifin said.

"It shows people are still willing to spend money on tourism and gaming where they might be reluctant to spend it for things like cars, washing machines or homes," he added.

Hannifin said the tax take was "right on" an estimate of about $83 million figured earlier by the Control Board.

The tax revenues compare to $74.3 million for the previous fiscal year — a dollar increase of $8.1 million.

Hannifin said the biggest chunk of the tax money was $53.4 million in percentage fees the casinos pay on their gross revenues.

The state's casino entertainment tax brought in another $11.1 million while a federal slot tax rebate produced $10.3 million, he said.

Other fees and taxes produced the rest of the tax dollars.

TV, cash taken

Connie Jean Garcia, 1116 E. 67th St. told Long Beach police Fridays that burglars who pried a window to enter her home, took a television set and cash with a total value of $1,180.

An unhappy lot

Monterey County homeowner reacts to property tax reassessment, some of which skyrocketed 165 per cent, during a demonstration at the Monterey City Hall Friday. Some 500 persons lodged complaints with city, county and state officials. Supervising tax appraiser Ted Neth, who calculated them, agreed that many of the increases were "horrendous," but quickly added that all figures were within the law.

New use of funds in war on crime urged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gray Davis, Gov. Brown's top aide, said Friday the state should stop pouring money into sophisticated police programs but rather should work with communities to help combat crime.

For example, Davis has persuaded the California Council on Criminal Justice to spend more than $1.2 million to hire about 1,000 public school students in part-time jobs provided they "don't commit a crime and stay in school."

Under the Reagan administration, Davis said in an interview, the council was "permeated by a pork barrel mentality" of law enforcement chiefs who were council members trying to win as much of the federal funding for their districts without regard to the overall crime problem.

Davis, the governor's executive assistant and newly appointed head of the council, said he has about 10 interns currently making telephone calls to police agencies around the nation to learn what programs have been proven successful in reducing crime rates.

He said most of the effective programs involved disseminating "information on how citizens can help themselves."

To reduce crime, Davis said, government must somehow lower the "level of tolerance" for criminal acts among the citizenry.

The phenomenon of citizens ignoring criminal acts that began in New York about 10 years ago now is taking hold elsewhere in the country, he said, noting people are commonly using phrases like "ripoff" and accepting as commonplace that "you pad your expense account and you cheat on your taxes."

"We must reverse that attitude," Davis said.

The council, which funnels federal anticrime funds to local programs, has approved $900,000 to the San Diego Unified School District and $325,000 to the San Francisco Youth Services Employment Committee to carry out the program of hiring students to keep them out of trouble.

The students will be paid at least the minimum wage and will largely perform work around the schools such as cutting lawns.

He said he hoped the jobs would become competitive and foster "peer group pressure" and "positively reinforce" students who do not commit crimes.

In many city schools, he said, the current peer pressure is toward seeing how malicious they can be toward teachers, other students and citizens—ultimately one of the causes of school violence.

On another subject, Davis said that the governor's office is monitoring one company to see how much it is hassled by government regulations in trying to construct a plant in Solano County.

The object of watching the progress of the unidentified company is to see where bureaucratic red tape can be reduced while maintaining the same environmental and other safeguards.

UC officials 'living in a dream world'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Brown told University of California officials Friday that they're living in a dream world and will take a back seat to grade schools in competition for state money.

"Take a look at New York City, England, Italy and wake up—this money is not here," the Democratic governor told university regents.

He said he will base future education funding on "two principles: new programs shall be funded by reducing old programs and the greatest priority shall go to primary and secondary education."

At a news conference after the meeting, however, Brown said he did not mean that public schools can expect more state money.

blind, the unemployed, primary and secondary education, and all the other government services."

Liberal regent William Matson Roth told Brown that the regents, not the governor nor the Legislature, should make the final decision on how the university spends its money.

The regents' new chairwoman, Elinor Heller, told reporters she agreed with Brown that "the university has been an elite institution, but I think we're trying to come to grips with reality."

But Saxon and Mrs. Heller disagreed with Brown's proposal that the university use donations or fees for some programs, instead of asking the state for money.

State school board urged to take desegregation lead

BURLINGAME (AP) — The state Board of Education was urged Friday to take leadership in desegregating California schools.

The recommendation came from the board's Equal Educational Opportunities Commission. The board received the report without debate and took no action.

"The policy-making and regulatory authority of the state board is the most appropriate avenue for providing leadership to school districts," said Charlie Mac Knight of Monterey, chairwoman of the commission.

"Therefore, the state board should, at the earliest possible time, initiate a program for providing direction and assistance to school districts in achieving desegregation and integration, and it should set a realistic time schedule for the development, hearing and adoption of a board policy."

State education officials have said racial desegregation may be made more difficult by a recent court decision which upheld a law barring schools from routinely keeping statistics on their ethnic enrollment.

In other action, the board received a report from the commission on the Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education.

The commission, appointed last year by state schools chief Wilson Riles, has suggested sweeping changes in the way California junior and senior high schools are run, including credit and non-credit school "furloughs" for students so they can learn outside the classroom.

Eastern's air record 'worst'

Reviewed by with edit high nam Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — Eastern Air Lines, whose jets have crashed in Charlotte, Miami and New York in the past three years, has the worst passenger fatality record of major domestic airlines during the 1970s, federal records show.

Its three crashes have taken the lives of 270 passengers — more than the crashes of all other major domestic airlines combined.

But, public and private authorities agree, the cold statistics don't necessarily mean you should be afraid to fly Eastern.

The government's chief air safety official, for instance, says he wouldn't hesitate to board an Eastern flight.

"I wouldn't give it a minute's thought," said Marion Roscoe, director of the Bureau of Aviation Safety of the National Transportation Safety Board.

And Frank Borman, the former astronaut who is now Eastern's president, says the statistics involve a lot of bad luck which tends to even out over "the long haul."

But an analysis of government records shows that since 1970:

— 94 passengers died in an Eastern crash in Miami in December 1972, 69 in Charlotte last September, and 107 in New York last month.

— Since 1970, Eastern has flown about 74 billion passenger miles. Its passenger death rate is 3.6 per billion miles. Over the same period, the average for other major trunk lines in this country is 0.8 deaths per billion.

— Two other persons died in December 1971 when an Eastern DC9 hit a private Cessna 200 in the air near Raleigh, N.C.

— Eastern planes were involved in 30 of the 240 "incidents" reported investigated by the NTSB between 1970-1974, more than any other airline except American (33). Incidents are things like minor fires or mechanical troubles that don't cause accidents but do cause concern. However, the NTSB probes only a fraction of them, and airlines have leeway in reporting them, so officials say statistics about incidents don't mean much.

Mimi Cuper, who heads the Nader-affiliated Aviation Consumer Action Project (ACAP), says, "you also must consider the length of flight," Ms. Cuper. "Eastern, for example, may fly for shorter distances at the same time than an airline like TWA. That means Eastern would make relatively more landings — which are the most dangerous part of flying."

Lou Davis, a spokesman for the Air Line Pilots Association, noted that "you have to separate the accidents from the airlines pretty much and put them into categories depending on what the conditions were."

TO Borman, Roscoe, and others, airline flying is getting safer, and safer, especially compared to other forms of transportation.

In 1940, for example, the passenger fatality rate per billion miles of domestic flying was 30.2. In 1960, it was 9.3, and it now is about one. But even now the death rate for auto travel is still more than 40 per billion miles.

Says John H. Reed, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, "Aviation still is one of the safest modes of travel in the world."

But not everyone fully agrees.

DAVIS, of the pilots union, claims the government balks at cracking down on the airlines.

"Anything that requires a hell of a lot of money is normally going to encounter a great deal of resistance from both the government and the carriers," he said, mentioning more precise instrument landing systems, less flammable materials on planes and noise-control programs.

Small flaws fixed as Apollo launch nears

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Launch crews found a few small problems in Apollo Friday, but none was serious enough to force a delay in Tuesday's joint U.S.-Soviet space mission.

Meanwhile, Russian cosmonauts finished their training for the flight, and America's astronauts again rehearsed the flight's critical beginning moments.

During an inspection, U.S. launch crews discovered that a 12-gauge wire, the size found in household lighting circuits, had been installed incorrectly on the tunnel that will connect the two spaceships after they link up.

The fault was due "to an ambiguous design drawing," the space agency said and was corrected. There would have been no problem in flight, a spokesman said, even if the incorrect installation had gone undetected.

Crews also discovered leaks of a solution in an experiment package and installed a backup unit.

The three astronauts, Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald Slayton spent the day in simulators at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

They rehearsed the final 10 minutes before launch and the first 10 minutes of flight which carries them into orbit. The astronauts will pilot T38 jets to Cape Canaveral late Saturday.

Soviet space officials announced that their prime rocket and its backup were fueled, and that the prime spacecraft's communications system and electrical circuits checked out.

The Russians are preparing two rockets and spaceships for the mission in case the first one should fail or the Apollo is delayed for several days in getting off the pad and therefore could not conduct a linkup with the first craft.

"Preparations at this time are on the prescribed schedule," was the word from the Baikonur launch site, 1,400 miles from Moscow.

The announcement said "The Soyuz crews have completed their theoretical and practical training for the mission and are now in quarantine at the Baikonur Cosmodrome."

Soyuz, with cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov aboard, is scheduled to lift off from Baikonur at 5:20 a.m. PDT Tuesday. Apollo, with its three astronauts, will be launched 7½ hours later at 12:50 p.m. PDT.

Soviets do an about-face on space shot publicity

By FRANK CREPEAU

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is giving unprecedented publicity to all phases of the historic joint American-Russian space project as preparations continue for Tuesday's Apollo-Soyuz launch.

It's a new experience in the Soviet Union where an upcoming mission has never been announced in advance and Russians have never had the opportunity to see a live launch. There is no way to gauge how stirred-up average Russians are about the flight, but the official Soviet media are doing all they can to spur interest.

THE SOVIETS have even produced an "Apollo-Soyuz" cigarette in honor of the mission.

The mission ends July 24 with the Russians returning to earth three days before the American crew on July 21. The two crews plan to rendezvous and dock their crafts in space on Thursday.

NEXT week's Soviet television schedule shows several blocks of time each day set aside for Apollo-Soyuz coverage, including 4½ hours to televise the Soyuz blastoff Tuesday.

The American television networks of CBS, NBC and ABC also are planning major coverage of the event from Moscow, Cape Canaveral and Houston, including live coverage of the take-off. No American network reporters are permitted to broadcast directly from either the Russian launch or landing sites. Soviet TV provides the pictures while the reporters report from Moscow.

Plea to keep secret Lockheed data denied

By ROBERT SMITH
WASHINGTON — A Senate subcommittee has turned down the private appeals of William Rogers, former secretary of state and attorney general, for a delay in furnishing information which he reportedly has described as potentially ruinous to the Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Rogers, a partner in the law firm of Rogers & Wells, is now representing the aircraft firm in its dealings with the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Multinational Corporations.

HE IS REPORTED by government sources to have talked privately with Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee, and Clifford Case of New Jersey, the ranking Republican on the subcommittee, to argue that information concerning foreign payments by Lockheed be kept secret.

Lockheed has received a loan guarantee of $250 million from the government to help it out of financial difficulties.

Rogers reportedly has pleaded not only for secrecy but also for more time. According to authoritative sources, the subcommittee voted in closed session Thursday to demand that Lockheed appear before it next week, also in closed session.

ACCORDING to the sources, both Church and Case favored forcing Lockheed to provide documents relating to its payments overseas. The senators, as well as the subcommittee staff, apparently feel that Lockheed has been dragging its heels in responding to a subpoena issued to the company for the information.

Reached by telephone, Rogers acknowledged that he has seen Church "and one other senator" about having more time to prepare the material. He refused to answer other questions, saying, "I don't discuss legal matters."

The subcommittee took several other actions Thursday dealing with overseas payments by American oil companies.

THE SENATORS voted to issue a subpoena to Ashland Oil, Inc. for information that would yield the names of the recipients of the company's overseas payments. Ashland has filed a report with the Securities and heard testimony from Archie Monroe, the controller of Exxon Corporation. Monroe argued that material about payments made by Exxon through its Italian subsidiary to political groups in Italy should be kept secret.

The subcommittee also questioned Everett Check, former head of Mobil Oil Corporation's European operations, about Mobil's overseas payments.

Showman up for drug count

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — A complaint charging Michael Butler, producer of the internationally successful musical "Hair" with growing a "plantation" of more than 3,000 opium poppies on the grounds of his luxurious home will be filed Monday, the Santa Barbara sheriff's office said Friday.

Deputies found the poppies in a raid on Butler's home last Wednesday.

Two men who said they were living in the home were arrested at the time, booked on charges of opium possession and released on bail. The charge carries a punishment of two to 10 years in prison if convicted.

Butler was not present at the time of the raid and has not been there since. The Santa Barbara district attorney's office said it understood Butler would appear with his attorneys once formal charges are filed.

"The poppies were in a 50 by 100 foot plot, very neatly tended, which made this particular raid rather unusual," said Sheriff's Deputy Lt. George Bragante.

"I don't know of any such discovery in recent years. The opium poppy is not only illegal in this country, it is extremely rare and rather difficult to cultivate... you almost never find even a few of them growing in the United States, let alone a whole field. Almost all raw opium is grown abroad."

Woman admits flying call girls to Vesco

Associated Press

A woman, who authorities said admitted that her quarter century in prostitution included jettisoning call girls to fugitive financier Robert Vesco, pleaded guilty Friday to pimping and pandering charges.

Superior Court Judge Joseph DiGiuseppi said he would sentence Mrs. Alex Fleming, 42, on Sept. 11.

Sheriff's Lt. Robert Ciulik said when Mrs. Fleming was arrested last year the woman admitted supplying young women to prominent businessmen and entertainers in Los Angeles County.

She has also claimed in congressional hearings in Washington to have airlifted girls to Vesco in Costa Rica when the financier was staying in that country. Vesco is wanted in the United States in connection with alleged secret contributions to President Nixon's reelection campaign.

Yes, but what did spacemen have to say?

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — A man walked into a radio station here Friday and forced station personnel at gunpoint to broadcast a tape recording of "an interview with people from outer space," police said.

The man, who identified himself only as "Jupiter," was arrested about 10 minutes later in KTYD-FM's offices by police.

Nancy Coe, a receptionist, told officers the man pulled a gun from his belt and said, "I'm sorry I have to do it this way, but I have to."

He handed her the tape cassette and forced her into the control room, saying, "No other station will play it."

Miss Coe said she told the announcer to play the tape right away, although the man "got kind of nervous" when a cassette player had to be brought from another room.

As the tape was being broadcast, Miss Coe said she locked herself in the bookkeeper's office and called police.

Jury deliberates in family murder

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Jury deliberations began Friday in the murder trial of Daniel Kent Altstadt, accused of the beating deaths of his parents and sister and of trying to cover up the crime by setting fire to the family home.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

There's a big difference between a vigorous sucker-rose branch and a plump basal cane, whether on a hybrid tea rose, climbing rose, tree rose, or floribunda type.

Gardener can easily determine the sucker by where it is growing on the bush. The sucker grows out only from the trunk part of the bush, below the bud-union area. The bud-union area is the thick swelling from which the good rose branches and most basal canes grow out.

HAVING determined the long willowy branched suckers, gardener grasps the branches near the lower section, wiggles and twists them until they tear away from the base of the roses. He does the same if the sucker grows up from the rose root beside the bush.

Sucker branches removed thusly won't regrow again because they are completely removed. Gardeners that cut off the suckers close to the plant trunk, or those that grow up from the root, notice that soon several new branches grow out from the remaining sucker stubs. The suckers rob the nourishment from the good rose branches. That's why it is important to remove them permanently.

Rose gardens are limited only to home owners and mobile home residents. Apartment house occupants and condominium dwellers can grow roses too, but only in containers for sunny lanais or patios.

A few one-story medical-dental or law office buildings have some roses growing on the grounds.

CONTAINER roses must be floribunda types that are smaller size, because the large size of containers is limited. Hybrid tea roses require large containers such as a barrel cut in half. Hybrid tea roses grow well in them.

Gardener has an opportunity to select the kinds of roses he prefers at a nursery, or a public park, while they are blooming. Some of the public rose gardens have the 1978 All America Selections of Cathedral, Yankee Doodle, America, and Sea Shell, blooming in among the older varieties as well as older AARS roses, too.

HOT WEATHER slows us down to a walk. Sure

ROSE SUCKERS.....get rid of them permanently

we like gardening, but we're inclined to take it easier. We seek shade every chance we get, yes, even a sip of a cool favorite drink (mild).

Plants can't move out of the sun into the shade where it's cooler. They have to take the heat. One way we can help them stand heat better is by mulching — putting a quarter-inch layer of weed-free, salts-free steer manure, leaf mold, half sawdust and half manure mixed, or a top dressing over the soil.

Such aids help the soil to retain moisture longer, after a good deep watering. The mulch acts as an insulator and repels the sun rays from boring into the soil. It keeps the soil cooler and saves on frequency of watering.

The same principle applies to mulching lawns, one sack per each 200 square feet.

ZINNIAS, asters, marigolds, petunias set out now in sunny flower beds grow fast, bloom quicker, and furnish needed color and cut flowers.

Begonias, impatiens and coleus with colorful Joseph's coat brighten shade gardens. Coleus should get several hours of sun to intensify the leaf colors. An upright-bush fuchsia or two between and in front of camellias provides the needed showy flowers throughout the summer.

Mosquitos populate woods with wildflowers as well

By KEN CONNAUGHTON

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — If you've never thought of the mosquito as the sexual superstar of the insect world, Dr. Lewis Nielsen would like a moment of your time.

The male bug's main function, he says, is to propagate its own species.

But Nielsen, a professor of biology at the University of Utah who has spent 30 years studying the mosquito, also says it is populating the woods with wildflowers.

His current concern is the insect's function as pollinator. He says preliminary studies suggest the bug makes a major contribution to the breeding of certain flowers. If so, its role in the sex life of the woodlands bridges genus and species.

"All the male does is just feed, swarm and try to take care of the females," he says. "It's too bad it's all instinctual. I don't really think they enjoy it."

Nielsen and an assistant will try during field studies this summer in Utah's Uinta and Wasatch mountains to determine just how great a contribution the bug makes to pollination of wildflowers as it feeds on their nectar.

"Perhaps mosquitoes aren't as appreciated as they might be," he says. "But of course, nobody appreciates them anyway." Nielsen says his studies in the past two years suggest some species of flowers depend "very heavily" on the mosquito for pollination.

The male, he says, does not suck blood and can survive only as long as it can live off the nectar of flowers. As it passes from blossom to blossom, it picks up pollen here and drops it there.

He says the bug's dual role of propagating its own species and populating the woods with flowers "so far is just an assumption, but I think it's a reasonable one."

Nielsen says female mosquitoes, who normally feed on blood, also may play a role in pollination. "The females are just as obligated to feed on nectar for a period of from a week to about 10 days between their emergence from the larval or pupal stage until they begin sucking blood. They stay in the area of their emergence until they mate. After they mate, they fly off in search of blood."

In the interim, he says, they feed on flowers.

Nielsen says the mosquito will never rival the bee as a pollinator, but he believes the insect is probably a significant factor in the propagation of at least some species of woodland flowers.

"I have a lot of admiration for its capabilities."

Suit fights jailing on simple intoxication

Associated Press

A proposal to stop criminal arrests based exclusively on intoxication was outlined Friday by attorneys who have filed a class action suit in behalf of five admitted drunks.

"The thrust of our lawsuit is that someone who is just intoxicated be diverted from the criminal justice system into the public health system," said attorney Timothy Flynn of the Center for Law in the Public Interest.

The suit, filed in Los Angeles Superior Court on Thursday, proposes that chronic alcoholics be taken to detoxification centers rather than booked into jails and be given a chance to "dry out" and receive counseling.

At a news conference Friday, one of the plaintiffs, 48-year-old Robert Sundance, declared, "I drink all the time. I'm a chronic alcoholic."

He said he has been arrested 300 times for being drunk.

Flynn said Sundance had tried several times to plead innocent and receive a trial but failed.

When the center learned of his case, they took over.

Flynn said he found that most drunks are encouraged to plead guilty when they are arraigned and 97 per cent do, never receiving a trial.

"The three per cent who plead not guilty usually do 30 days before their cases are dismissed. There is no effort to give them a trial; no witnesses are subpoenaed, and nobody gets counsel. Most of these people are indigent," Flynn said.

Dad lets son die so 'he will live in others'

COSTA MESA (AP) — When the doctor told him his son was dead as a human and now was only a body kept alive with machines, William Bohnsack knew what had to be done.

He signed the papers authorizing doctors to take 11-year-old Donald's eyes and kidneys for transplants.

"If that child can save the life of two, or give someone sighted eyes, he has fulfilled his obligation to mankind... He served his purpose. He will live in others," Bohnsack, an unemployed auto body repairman, said as his son lay in a coma in Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital.

Donald rode his mini-bike into a chain harri- cade that caught him at head level about dusk on July 3. When help arrived, he had stopped breathing. Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation brought back respiration, but hospital tests show Donald's important brain waves had stopped.

He was kept alive mechanically, and doctors told the father there was no hope that his son could survive. "We've got a dead child (technically) kept alive by a machine," the father said doctors told him.

So he agreed to the transplant operation which was performed Thursday night. After the kidneys and eyes were removed, the machine was turned off, Bohnsack said, and his son's heart beat for a short time before giving up.

The kidneys were sent to Harbor General Hospital in Torrance and the eyes to Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital to await the recipients that Donald's family hope will give Donald's death meaning.

Man shot; wife held

Retired Long Beach police officer Ed Free, who police said was shot by his wife following a quarrel early Friday, remained in critical condition at Community Hospital Friday night, hospital officials said.

Lois Free, 44, was booked for assault with intent to commit murder following the 2:30 a.m. shooting in the family home at 2311 Canehill Ave.

Free, 48, was taken to the hospital's intensive care unit. Investigators said the bullet from Free's service revolver shattered his collarbone and lodged in his shoulder near his spine, which may have been damaged.

Guitar stolen

A guitar and television set with a total value of $600 were taken from the home of Linda L. Ledbetter, 4900 Clairdale Ave., by burglars who entered the house through a window, Long Beach police said Friday.

Krishnas sue for fair entry

Associated Press

The Hare Krishna Society asked the U.S. District Court in Los Angeles Friday to compel the operators of the Orange County Fair to permit its missionaries onto the fairgrounds to pass out religious tracts and solicit donations.

The fair, which opened Friday and runs through July 20, is located on 166 acres of state-owned land in Costa Mesa, and more than 250,000 persons are expected to attend.

Lawyers for the International Society of Krishna Consciousness, Inc. (ISKCON) contend that fair officials have denied Krishna believers access on the grounds that the fair is privately run.

The suit said refusal to permit the Krishna followers on the fairgrounds constitutes a violation of the Constitution's guarantee of religious freedom.

Named as defendants were Orange County Sheriff Bradley Gates, Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks, the state of California and the 32nd District Agricultural Association.

The suit pointed out that the Krishna consciousness requires its followers to perform the religious ritual called "Sankirtan," which consists of soliciting donations while disseminating religious literature in public places.

Last week, the suit said, a Northern California judge issued an injunction to force operators of the Alameda County Fair to permit Krishna followers onto the fairgrounds to chant and seek donations.

AFT chief sees bitter new strikes

HONOLULU (AP) — The president of the American Federation of Teachers predicts, "We're going to see a period of very bitter strikes."

President Albert Shanker told the AFT's convention here, "It's better to stand up and fight in the beginning than wait a few years and not be able to hold on to what we have now."

The 59th annual convention of the 414,000-member organization began Thursday.

"All across the country teachers are being faced with cutbacks," Shanker said. "Layoffs are increasing. Everything in the public sector depends on the health of the private sector."

"If the private sector is sick, the public schools and the public sector can't flourish."

The federal government could attack the problems, he said.

"There's no reason why the President and Congress could not bring people back to work at important social service jobs," Shanker said. "It can be done only if we have enough unity to force important political pressure."

Body found below cliffs identified

A man whose body was found Sunday at the foot of the cliffs near the Point Fermin lighthouse was identified by police Friday as Motoashi Yamato, a 53-year old Los Angeles resident.

Authorities listed his death as a probable suicide. His body, with no identification, was found by a fisherman early in the morning at the bottom of the 100-foot cliffs.

Unable to locate any local relatives, investigators said they were looking for relatives in Japan. They said the man's last known address was 128 E. Fourth St. in downtown Los Angeles. They said he was believed to have worked as a gardener.

PEOPLE AND IDEAS Establishments besieged Missouri Synod — an American tragedy

By MARK CLUTTER

To the secular man in the street the tragic conflict of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in Anaheim this week seems incomprehensible. Its charges of heresy and rebellion sound like something that could have occurred during the wars of religion in the 16th and 17th centuries. The convention seemed out of place in "this year of Grace, 1975."

Actually it was as contemporary as today. It reflects what is going on in almost all American establishments, whether they be religious, professional, educational, military, business or government. Similar conflicts are going on in many other nations.

The question at issue is simply the meaning and the power of legal authority. Who has the right to rule?

The Missouri Synod is a classic example of this conflict.

It is a highly structured denomination. It has a strict constitutional pattern. It is a democracy. Delegates from churches from all over the world, but mostly America, meet regularly to set church policies and make new laws. Voting delegates at Anaheim numbered more than 1,200. There were also non-voting delegates and many hundreds of interested visitors. The news media received a most cordial welcome. An attempt to bar live television from the convention floor was overwhelmingly voted down. Reporters of various types, many from religion publications, numbered 175.

interpreted strictly in accordance with synodical doctrinal statements. The moderators held that the historical-critical method should be used; the Bible should be studied in relation to the historical periods in which it was written.

In the 1973 convention in New Orleans a resolution was passed declaring the faculty majority at Concordia Seminary in violation of the synod's constitution. Charges were brought against Dr. John H. Tietjen, seminary president. Later he was suspended and then fired.

Early in 1974 most of the faculty and students walked out and formed the Seminary in Exile (Seminex).

Many of its graduates were ordained by eight district presidents.

Evangelical Lutherans in Mission (ELIM) was formed to support Seminex.

THE RESOLUTION prohibiting district presidents from performing such ordinations was passed in Anaheim. Disobedient presidents can be removed. And ELIM was declared "schismatic" in another resolution.

The conservatives have their victory, but it was not decisive. The vote on the first resolution was 626 to 466. Many Lutherans are going home still "in rebellion."

The Missouri Synod is a most serious group. The Convention Workbook contains 594 large pages with small type. There was little time for socializing. The convention was in session until 2 a.m. Wednesday and reconvened at 8 a.m. One can wonder about the wisdom of such zeal; in an emotion-laden atmosphere judgment and temper can become rather shaky at 2 a.m.

The basic cause of the conflict was a theological question. But the true issue is one of the limits of authority. Does a church have full power over its creature, a seminary. Does it have the right to tell its professors how and what they can teach?

Should professors in seminaries have the duty of presenting the various ideas connected with their disciplines? Should they encourage free intellectual inquiry by their students? Or are they mere mouthpieces for the intellectual decisions of their conventions?

THESE IDEAS are not easily answered in a church as highly structured as Missouri Synod. The actions of Dr. J. A. O. Preus, Synod president, and some other conservatives seem dictatorial to outsiders and to some Lutherans. But they would reply that they were carrying out their duties according to the constitution, bylaws and policies set down by the democratically organized convention.

The controversy has had a damaging event on the church. It is a traditionally dynamic church, keen on education, foreign missions and pastoral services. The money is no longer coming in as adequately as it once did. Troubled parishoners are closing their poodetbooks.

Surely some of the pastors must feel a measure of frustration. They sit up late at night writing learned articles on what they believe — but they also have the duty of doing a pastor's work, preaching the Gospel, weddings, funerals, baptisms, counseling, administration of all their programs, etc., etc. Their first duties, most would say, are to the people in the pews.

ordination from bishops going in a direct line to the Twelve Apostles. The authority of the church depends upon the heirs of the Twelve and the Canon Law created by the conventions they call.

No one has to believe in the Apostolic Succession. If he doesn't believe he can still be a Christian. But can he be an Episcopalian? Or any kind of Catholic?

REBELLION ON CAMPUS

Not long ago campuses — high school and college — were highly regulated places. Codes of dress and conduct — strict in high school, freer in college — existed. And often these codes were unspoken and enforced more by the students than the faculty.

Study was the reason for a student's existence. He had choices of what he would study. The number of electives increased as he grew older. But whatever he chose, he had to perform. He had to go to class, he had to write papers, he had to take his exams.

The students knew they lived under law and regulation. The schools were created by segments of the public according to their ideals. There was a chain of command — professors, deans, college president, the board of regents. If the kid didn't like the law he could just walk away after the age of 16.

There was no talk then of student participation in forming university policies — a rather silly idea since students by the time they could learn enough to contribute something would be graduated and long gone.

The student revolutions of the 1960s left some scars and may have done some good. But there does seem to be a decline in discipline, in sense of purpose.

APOSTOLIC SUCCESSION

All churches these days are knowing in varying degrees the stresses of the Missouri Synod.

The Episcopal Church is wracked by a problem which to the secular man or woman in the street seems piffing: Should women be ordained as priests?

"Why not?" they ask.

Rebel bishops ordained 11 women last summer. The House of Bishops promptly declared the ordinations invalid.

Here again the problem is different from its statement. The question is one of authority.

The Episcopal Church, like all Catholic churches, believes in the Apostolic Succession of Bishops. Each bishop received his

TO ADMIRE the Missouri Synod one needs to see its members in a convention battle. Feelings were running high in the hours-long debate on limiting the power of district presidents, but these gentlemen remained gentlemen. They spoke earnestly and well, often with good oratory since many are pastors. (Women delegates were a small minority.)

The delegates made a most favorable impression. They seemed totally dedicated to their conflicting ideals.

But what was the shouting all about?

Millions of words have been written on the subject. The Missouri Synod believes in the importance of the printed word, and many of its writers are quite able.

TO SUMMARIZE briefly, the conflict began about six years ago in Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, over the correct way to study the Bible. The conservatives argued that the Bible must be

THE HOLOCAUST

Significance of Nazi horror

EDITOR'S NOTE: Several readers wrote excellent articles on this subject. This one was chosen for publication because it seemed to express the general opinion of the others.

By KENNETH LEVIN
Assistant Director,
Jewish Community
Federation

In response to a letter appearing in the Religion Section, the Religion Editor displayed certain misconceptions regarding the meaning and significance of the Holocaust to Jew and non-Jew alike. The viewpoint he promulgated was that Western civilization in no way tolerated the genocide of Jews in Nazi Germany; that the mass murders were the responsibility of a few evil, un-Christian men; that Jews tend to brood over the Holocaust beyond reasonable proportion.

Let's first look at how the Free World reacted to the campaign of systematic persecution, robbery, and murder carried out in Nazi Germany. In a well documented report by the Yad Vashem Remembrance Authority in Jerusalem, the world was guilty of the crimes of omission and commission. Up to the outbreak of World War II, the press of the Western world consistently reported on the Germans' anti-Jewish policy and the brutal, deliberate victimization of the Jews of Nazi Germany and the areas annexed. The general public was therefore fully informed as to the Nazi persecution of the Jews of Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia. In many cases the public was outraged, but the governments of the major European democracies judged it expedient to regard the Jewish problem as the internal affair of a sovereign state. Since the governments were anxious to achieve a rapprochement with Germany they adopted a conciliatory policy, denying themselves the right to intervene. Thus it was that no effective protest was registered when Jews were deprived of their civil rights, and even of their means of earning their daily bread.

DESPITE their desire to remain neutral vis-a-vis the emigration of Jews from the Reich, the free countries were forced to take a stand on the question of the Jews' entry to countries of refuge. The U.S.A. was not prepared to relax its stringent immigration quotas, which limited the number of Central and Eastern Europeans admitted each year. Great Britain was pitiless in blocking immigration into Palestine and strictly limited the number of entry permits. States with a substantial capacity for absorption such as Australia, Canada and most of the countries of South America, were willing to receive agricultural laborers but refused to ally the entry of professionals, merchants and skilled artisans. Indeed, in Britain and the U.S. protests were actually organized against the admission of immigrant doctors.

In July 1938, the Evian

Conference was convened due to the initiative of the President of the United States. Its purpose was to find ways and means of helping the emigration of refugees from Germany and Austria and their absorption elsewhere. Thirty-two countries sent representatives to the conference and hopes were high that a solution could be found. However, it soon became clear that the great powers, which had initiated the conference, were themselves reluctant to take any significant steps toward absorbing the refugees and so they failed to set an example for the smaller countries.

Lengthy speeches and appeals were made but no single country committed itself to taking any practical measures. The conference set up an international committee for refugee affairs with headquarters in London. This committee lacked the necessary funds to enable it to function effectively and did not have the means of directing the flow of refugees to any specific destination. Consequently, the Evian Conference must be regarded as a complete failure.

The results of the Evian Conference supplied the Germans with opportunities for cynical comments on the attitude of the free world. Before the first session was held, Hitler jeered that he could "only hope and expect that the other world which is so sympathetic towards these criminals, would at heart be generous enough to turn this sympathy into actual aid."

When it became clear that the conference had ended without even outlining practical measures, the Germans hastened to exploit the situation. They claimed that the condemnation expressed by all the democratic countries was mere propaganda; it was obvious that they too did not wish to accept Jews.

A PRACTICAL outcome of the Evian Conference was the denial of entry into the United States to 937 Jewish refugees aboard the ship S.S. St. Louis in 1939, forcing their return to Europe. The majority of those refugees became part of the "final solution." Witte and Thomas, authors of the story on this voyage (Voyage of the Damned), concluded that "what is certain is that if Cuba or the United States had opened their doors, almost no one from the ship need have died."

When the war began, the flow of constant comprehensive information on conditions in Germany and the occupied countries ceased. Until about mid-1942 the general tendency was to regard the constant persecution of the Jews as one part of the total complex of oppression in the occupied countries. Early in 1942, more news of the activities of the "Einsatzgruppen" in the east and the mass killings in the death camps filtered through to the west. By the middle of 1942, the horrifying rumors about the "final solution" and the gruesome operations being conducted had been verified.

In the major countries of the anti-Nazi alliance, the United States and Great Britain, the reactions were of horror and indignation. However, once again not only was there a refusal to consider the plans put forward by Jews to combat the Nazis persecution of their brethren (such as demand for the exchange of Germans for Jews or the launching of retaliation strikes against the Germans until the murders ceased,) there was not even a willingness to cease the formal procedures governing the transfer of dollars abroad which could have saved the lives of many Jews.

Moreover, the policies with regard to immigration quotas remained inflexible. Proposals, which, if put into action, could have saved thousands of children and other victims, were submitted to a ponderous administration incapable of dealing with the situation and thus produced no tangible results.

In April 1943, at the precise moment when the Jews in the Warsaw Ghetto were fighting for their lives, a conference of the major allies convened in Bermuda to consider the problem of the refugees. This conference like its predecessor at Evian proposed no practical solutions. The only step it took was to revive the moribund intergovernmental committee, which had no executive powers.

WHAT was the role of the Church Establishment? The Vatican Archives of World War II, newly opened to study, substantiates the long prevalent assumption that Pope Pius XII had knowledge of Nazi concentration camps and crematoria yet took no steps to protest or to denounce the genocidal program. Except for individual acts of heroism, other church leaders were deafeningly silent.

Elie Wiesel, a well-known novelist and survivor of the concentration camps, remarked recently that he feels threatened once again as a Jew. "As far as the Jewish people are concerned, the world has remained unchanged: as indifferent to our fate as to its own..."

Is this apprehension Jewish paranoia? I say "No" because paranoia connotes imagined feelings of persecution or irrational suspicion. Jewish "nervousness" of the potential for anti-Semitism is embedded in the long, dark history of oppression, persecution, discrimination and scapegoating, of which the Holocaust is but the most savage and gruesome manifestation.

We witness the virus of anti-Semitism today with Jews in the Soviet Union and Syria being systematically denied their right to be Jews or to leave the lands that they have come to deem their prisons, and being harassed and cruelly punished for asking to be freed. They cannot relax their anxiety while a beleaguered Jewish state, restored after centuries of exile, is threatened because it is Jewish by a surrounding Arab world which in its world-wide propaganda propagates anti-Semitism along with its political anti-Zionism.

None of these — neither the memories nor the present facts — are Jewish inventions. All are part of the millennial Jewish experience, from which today's Jews inherit an almost intuitive sensitivity to the signs and portents of anti-Semitism and to its masked or hidden manifestations.

To most Jews the security of the State of Israel and the welfare of its Jewish people are ineluctably intertwined with the quality and security of Jewish life everywhere. In Jewish theology and tradition, The Land, and especially the City of Jerusalem, has a unique place. The creation of the State, at a time when the full horrors of the Holocaust were still being disclosed, was an event of incalculable magnitude and influence in the life of the Jewish people; the State has become for many Jews the symbol and the embodiment, in this time, of the continuity of Jewish life.

ANY THREAT to Israel is therefore a threat to Jews. Whoever seeks the destruction of Israel or the serious impairment of its sovereignty seeks to strike a blow at Jewish life. To wish to destroy Israel is

Bread needed

Religion Editor:

It is certainly a truism that man does not live by bread alone, but who among us can deny that it does help to have some on hand to eat?

We would like for more people to know about a New York City-based group headed by Eugene Carson Blake, former General Secretary of the World Council of Churches, known as Bread for the World, 602 E. 9th St., NYC 10009.

This group enlists ordinary citizens at grassroots levels to become citizen-advocates for the world's hungry and poor. Their concern is linked to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and is one of love for people who have not even the basic human needs.

More citizens must become actively involved and care enough to secure accurate and up-to-date information about this program. It does not actually distribute food or sponsor relief projects. Organizations already in existence are used for development therefore to harbor one of the grossest forms of anti-Semitism.

Many non-Jews genuinely do not comprehend this. Many fail also to perceive in the reiterated use of "code words" such as Zionism the calculated propagation of anti-Jewish feelings and attitudes. These failures of comprehension often derive not from any hostility or even indifference to Jewish concerns, but from honest incapacity to grasp either the intensity of Jewish feelings or the inexorable processes of history.

It is not to be expected that most non-Jews want or be able to enter into or fully empathize with the Jewish state of mind; no more than the reverse is to be expected. What to Jews may seem the indifference of non-Jews to the sensitivities or even the vital interests of Jews may very well reflect only non-Jewish preoccupation with matters to which Jews on their part may be equally indifferent.

But it could be equally dangerous to fail to expose anti-Semitism, to denounce it, and to sound the alarm when it seems to be growing, in time to avert its dark consequences, not only for Jews but for the entire society.

Letters

The prime motivation is toward enlisting ordinary citizens to make contact with their members of Congress and other government leaders regarding U.S. policy matters vitally affecting hungry people in all parts of the world. As Bread for the World says: "Clearly, if we are to respond effectively to the love of Christ and to His hungry brothers and sisters, we must express our concern in a way that will change decisions made in Washington, D.C." It can be done, if we care enough.

War poem

Religion Editor:

Among the fine ground-work you are sowing in your excellent Church editing and editorializing is publishing a poem like the one entitled WARS, by Ruth C. Morris, of Long Beach, in last week's Church section, July 5th.

That poem is a masterpiece and should be reprinted again on future Memorial weekends, and whenever cocky militarists get together to boast of their strength. Mrs. Morris expressed in eloquent pathos the searing gangsterism provoked by any war machine and surely it is time for MAN TO LISTEN. If communication is to mean anything it ought to affect the governments who marvel at our world-wide news intelligence but who deny passage of the heart to the mind of egotistical monsters who decree the bullet, poison gas and atomic bombs the easiest way to replace a conscience which doesn't know how to answer itself. Please convey my thought to this beautiful lady and assure her that numberless fathers, bachelors and single men agree with her sentiments one million percent.

POOR RICH MAN

He had a quarter of a million dollars but lived in poverty. This is the amazing story of a man who died recently in a mid-western state.

This rich pauper operated a small farm and lived in a run-down house without modern conveniences of any kind. He lived a hand-to-mouth existence and went about in clothes that were almost in tatters. He was a recluse, shunning human society. Then he died and his property passed to some distant relative whom he had never known.

Some months later county officials decided to widen the main highway, and an exit road passed closed to the silo on the deceased poor rich man's place. During the excavating workmen unearthed two milk cans such as dairy farmers use. To their astonishment, the cans were crammed with bills, many of large denominations, totaling over $250,000 in cash.

You may say to yourself that this fellow was just an "oddball" to have all that money and yet live in poverty. How stupid to deny himself the ordinary comforts and other values which such wealth could buy.

But wait a minute. Don't write off this strange character so easily. Why not let his story serve to activate a little serious thinking on our parts? Shouldn't I, perhaps, ask myself whether I am utilizing all of the rich values open to me in this life? Am I, maybe, enduring in a kind of mental and spiritual poverty when all the time I actually possess resources which could make life really worthwhile?

Take, for example, cultural opportunities. The greatest music of all time is available today in many forms and a marvelous enrichment of mind and heart is provided in the works of famous masters. But many content themselves with jumbles of sound or musical noise produced with a kind of rhythm and this is all the so-called music they know. Either they don't realize there is something better or it's too much trouble to upgrade musical tastes, so they spend their lives in cultural poverty.

I can talk realistically about this. My own children told me that I could have the greatest music in my own home. I would go to symphony concerts on trips to Europe and to the famous opera houses of Paris and Vienna, but at home I thought I had no time for music.

Then my children persuaded me to have the house wired for stereo. Now our home resounds to exciting works I only dimly knew by name and their full richness, is becoming part of me. At last I've decided to draw on the musical and cultural wealth of the ages which is available for only a modest outlay.

And again, the world offers so much fun and pleasure that its positively pathetic how little of it many people find. I am glad to observe that more people every year are learning to relax and play a bit. And this is good. I've recently been in the winter sports area of Switzerland and have been amazed at how much fun one can have even in the wintertime.

People, ideas

pose, even of intellectual integrity.

This perhaps is what the Missouri Synod fears most. Faculty and students did reject the discipline of their strict church — and practically destroyed their seminary.

AUTHORITY, FREEDOM

Throughout history there has been debate over the limits of authority and the limits of freedom. It is especially acute in our time. There are some who think that the pendulum is now swinging back toward authority. It could swing too far and too fast.

HUNGER IN LONG BEACH

Food and Food Stamp Weekend is being observed in churches and synagogues throughout the greater Long Beach area today and Sunday.

Congregations are being invited to bring canned and packaged food donations to their Sabbath and Sunday worship services this weekend, for distribution to hunger serving agencies in the area.

Canned food collected in this drive will be taken by congregations to the hunger serving community agency of their choice. Those being recommended are:

CENTRAL AREA NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER, 1133 Rhea Street;
DOWNTOWN NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER, 601 Pacific Avenue;
EAST LONG BEACH NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER, 2338 E. Anaheim;

NORTH LONG BEACH NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER, 1337 South Street;
WESTSIDE NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER, 1372 W. Willow;
ST. FRANCIS CENTER, 808 E. 4th Street;
SALVATION ARMY WELFARE OFFICE, 834 Pacific Avenue.

The increasing demand for emergency food has outstripped the capacity of these agencies to keep their shelves stocked. Because the five Neighborhood Centers, the St. Francis Center and the Salvation Army Welfare Office have not been able to generate sufficient additional food contributions to meet the spiraling demand, the Food and Food Stamp Weekend has been planned to dramatize the problem and mobilize the support of churches and synagogues.

Information on the Food Stamp Program will also be available in the churches and synagogues this weekend. The objective of this phase of the emphasis will be to overcome the lack of understanding and misinformation about the Food Stamp Program, so elderly and other persons on low and fixed incomes can maintain a nutritious diet despite the ravages of inflation and rising rents.

The Food and Food Stamp Weekend emphasis is being encouraged by the Greater Long Beach Coalition Against Hunger, which is composed of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergy and lay persons.

The Coalition is also planning a conference in the fall, and is actively supporting legislation such as the Surplus Food Bill, AB530, which would allow surplus food to be distributed through churches, synagogues and non-profit groups before disposal.

"Hunger has become an emergency, not only in the Sahel and Bangladesh, but also right here in our Long Beach area", according to Rev. Galal Gough, who is a member of the Food and Food Stamp Weekend subcommittee. "Unemployment and the squeeze of rising rent and inflationary prices have created hunger conditions for rapidly increasing numbers of people on low and fixed incomes."

His Way Singers, a full-time youth evangelistic team, will present a program 11 a.m., Saturday, at the Long Beach Seventh-day Adventist Church, 1001 E. Third Street. The group is directed by John Thurber, evangelist for the Carolina Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

The Claiborne Singers will present a concert at Community Baptist Church, 15363 Orange Ave., Paramount, Sunday, 10:45 A.M.

Greg Eckler and Psalm 150 will head a free summer rock festival at Melodyland, opposite Disneyland's main entrance, Anaheim, Tuesday, 7:30 p.m.

Bob Turnbull, known as the "chaplain of Waikiki Beach" because of his youth ministries in Honolulu, will speak Sunday, 7:30 p.m., at El Dorado Park Church, 3655 Norwalk Blvd.

The Rev. Clair M. Whitmore will preach at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 370 Junipero Ave. He grew up in the church and is now a pastor at Elk Mound, Wis. He is the son of Mrs. Clara Whitmore, Long Beach.

An Evening Vacation Bible School for adults and children will be offered on Wednesday through Aug. 13 at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 370 Junipero Ave. There will be a potluck dinner at 6 p.m. each Wednesday. Adult classes include "The Reformation," "The Christ Controlled Life" and "How to Better Use Your Bible."

Dean Wilder and Robert Hale will give a sacred concert Wednesday, 7 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road. Hale sings with the New York City Opera Company. Wilder is head of the voice department of Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N.J.

The new Universal Church of Revelations is sponsoring a lecture series on ESP by Dr. Michael James at Peek Colonial Terrace Room, 7801 Bolsa, Westminster, on July 13, 20, 27, and Aug. 3.

Joy Tuggey, a concert pianist from Venezuela, will speak to the Eteri Club, California Heights Baptist Church, 4130 Gardenia Ave., Monday, 7 p.m.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Get to know someone special.

Yourself, as God created you.
You do it by putting off the old man, as the Bible says, and putting on "the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness."
(Ephesians 4:22-24)

This better view of yourself comes step by step as your understanding of the Bible deepens. Which is what a Christian Science church service is for.
You're welcome to come, this or any Sunday.

FORD REPEATS VOW

Michigan, where he kissed one girl band member and got a kiss from another while leading the annual cherry festival parade on a warm, sunny day in Traverse City.

In his Chicago speech, Ford said, "We must be moderate in our economic plans and expectations. We must not allow the economy to start, then stop, then start again."

"We must not permit government pump-priming to break the economic dikes. False hopes must not be paraded before the American people — the promise of a quick fix — leaving them with empty illusions."

In assessing the current economic situation, Ford mentioned no specifics such as nationwide joblessness of almost 9 per cent, but said "the decline in output and the increase in unemployment have stopped."

"All signs point to this fact: we are on the road to economic recovery."

Ford, who has cast 33 vetoes since taking office last August, said "I will continue to veto unnecessary spending" by the Democratic-controlled Congress, claiming it "has been playing with fire, attempting to add huge amounts of spending that will rekindle inflation" just when prices increases are subsiding.

The President called the veto power his "constitutional means to put out the flames" and promised:

"I will not spend the American people into more headaches and heartaches for a hollow victory — a short term period of economic resurgence that might last a year or two ... I am aiming at reestablishing a stable, solid foundation for the years ahead."

CIA report suggests other agencies were 'infiltrated'

By JOHN M. CREWDSON
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency has "detailed" its staff employees to serve for various periods in White House offices, including that of the President, and in such executive departments as Commerce and Treasury, according to a 1973 report of the agency's inspector general.

A portion of the document, which was compiled as a summary of improper or inappropriate CIA activities, was read to newsmen Friday by Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., chairman of the House Select Committee on Intelligence.

Nedzi said he had received the report and a briefing on its background Thursday by the CIA, and had seen or heard "nothing" to support recent allegations of the existence of a high-level CIA operative inside the Nixon White House.

Nedzi did not mention Friday any cases in which, so far as he knew, CIA employees had been placed in other government agencies without the knowledge of officials in those agencies. None of the instances to which he referred appeared to involve any CIA officers or clerks who had been placed in high-level posts outside the agency.

Although some of the agencies mentioned to maintain a formal liaison with the CIA none of the individuals involved was said to have been connected with the liaison function, and it remained unclear whether any actual infiltration of other departments had taken place.

In a statement Friday, the CIA said that the detailing of its employees to other agencies "responded to the authority of the agency to which they are detailed."

"This form of duty is in no way a penetration or infiltration of the receiving agency or department," the statement said. The practice, the agency said, was "a long established and widespread" one.

AS READ BY Nedzi, the inspector general's account stated that "for many years, CIA has detailed employees to the immediate office of the White House and to components intimately associated with the office of the President," including the Council on International Economic Policy and the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

Crisis feared if U.S.-oil curbs end

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader, the airline industry and an oil industry executive warned Friday of dire consequences to the economy if controls on domestically produced oil are permitted to lapse this summer.

They said a steep rise in energy costs immediately would follow and would abort recovery from the recession, invigorate inflation, cause widespread layoffs and create a situation in which foreign oil producers would be able to dictate the price of all the oil consumed in this country, not just imported oil.

The testimony was taken at a House energy and power subcommittee hearing to build up support for Democratic bills coming up in the House and Senate next week which would retain controls on domestic oil. Without the extension, authority to control oil prices will expire Aug. 31.

The administration seeks to abolish controls, arguing higher domestic prices are needed to induce exploration for new sources of oil here. But conceding that an abrupt end of controls would have a jarring effect on the economy, the administration has proposed stretching out decontrol over 25 months.

Nader charged that the big U.S. oil companies favor, rather than oppose, high prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries because the OPEC world price tends to become the domestic price.

"If we permit domestic oil, gas and coal prices to be pegged to the OPEC oil price rather than setting reasonable prices ourselves, the value of energy reserves in this country owned by the giant multinational oil companies will rise by hundreds of billions of dollars," Nader said.

"Given such an incentive, the oil companies will hold the cartel together in spite of any destabilizing tendencies which might appear within the cartel over time."

James Landry, general counsel for the Air Transport Association of America, said decontrol would raise jet fuel prices to the point that 400 planes, one out of five in service, might have to be grounded and 40,000 airline employees laid off.

Robert Yancey, president of the Ashland Oil Co., argued that foreign powers could cause domestic prices to fluctuate wildly if controls ended.

"Absent controls, domestic crude prices would be expected to follow OPEC's lead," he said. "Thus, foreign powers could have an instantaneous and devastating effect on our country's economy."

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the subcommittee, said even if OPEC does not raise its prices this fall, as it is expected to do, removal of domestic controls "will create economic trauma — a lower gross national product, increase in wholesale and consumer price indexes, another surge in unemployment, and reduced new housing starts and automobile sales, among others." He said a computer study of the effect of higher oil prices led to that conclusion.

New cash, credit curbs set by Fed

By RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer

The Federal Reserve, fearing too rapid a recovery from the recession will send prices soaring, has put the brakes on money and credit. The prime rate, a key barometer of Fed policy, rose to 7 1/2 per cent Friday.

The prime rate increase by the First National City Bank was the second weekly rise in a row and brought the prime to its highest level since late April.

Citibank is a trendsetter on interest rates, and other banks were expected to raise their rates accordingly. The prime is the interest rate banks charge their best corporate customers.

It is widely watched because it reflects Federal Reserve policy on the availability of credit and money.

When the prime goes up, it generally means the Fed is restricting the flow of money into the nation's economy to discourage spending and borrowing. It pursued this policy through much of 1974 to check inflation.

When the prime goes down, it generally means the Fed is putting more money into the system to encourage spending and borrowing. This is the policy it had pursued since early this year.

The recent increases reflect the Fed's stricter policy on making money and credit available. In recent weeks, the Fed has forced higher interest rates and cutback on the nation's money supply, the total of cash on hand and in checking accounts.

The Fed tightened the reigns after the money supply grew at an annual rate in excess of 10 per cent in April, May and June. The Fed does not want the money supply to grow any faster than 7.5 per cent, and thus applied the brakes.

7 guilty of fraud in traffic cases

United Press International

Seven persons were found guilty Friday of fraud and grand theft in allegedly staging more than 60 minor traffic accidents to obtain insurance money.

The defendants, it was charged, used only eight automobiles and set up the same type accidents over and over again to collect a total of more than $25,000.

The guilty verdicts were returned before Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Kathleen Parker.

Ten insurance companies were victimized, evidence indicated.

The trial lasted 18 weeks and 113 witnesses testified. There were about 200 exhibits introduced.

The investigation began when Sgt. Raymond Callahan noticed a discrepancy in an accident report. He had come on the scene by chance and saw three persons in one car and one in another. The accident claim, he noticed later, said there were five persons in one car and one in the other.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Kellogg Chan pointed up the similarity of the claims and said, "One of the defendants actually chipped his teeth in one accident and then filed eight claims in which he sought compensation for dental work."

Car-price hike this fall doubted

Knight-News Service

WASHINGTON — Ford administration officials expressed doubt Friday that the major American automobile companies will be able to pull off sizable price increases on their 1976 models even if they are economically justified.

With automobile manufacturers hinting that new car prices this fall may average $300 per vehicle, officials here noted that Detroit must take into account the fact that imports are taking up a growing share of the United States market and that car demand still may be soft.

President Ford's Council on Wage-Price Stability has launched a study of automobile car-pricing, including whether costs and demand would justify another sharp price increase.

Although word from Detroit Friday appeared to indicate a $300 per car average price rise may show up on new models this fall, a council official said the car manufacturers may be engaging in some clever market strategy.

He noted that Ford Motor Co. told its dealers, that fleet orders from businesses and governments can be taken with the understanding that prices won't rise any more than 6 per cent. That appeared to indicate a $300 increase.

Detroit's new emphasis on gasoline mileage will definitely be a factor in new-car demand this fall, but officials here don't know as yet how significant it will be. The improved mileage may increase sales, supporting a price increase, but continued competition from imports may offset this factor, one said.

CIA CONTROVERSY

CBS that Butterfield was a contact officer "as I was at the Defense Department." The job was to "open the doors for CIA operations," he said.

He made similar statements in an interview with NBC.

He said he did not know for certain whether Butterfield was on the CIA payroll at the time.

A CIA spokesman, who originally had refused all comment on the Prouty claim, later said that Butterfield "has never been assigned to or worked for the CIA in any capacity." That statement appeared to conflict with an official White House biography of Butterfield which described him as having participated in "Cuban brigade affairs relating back to the Bay of Pigs affair," the CIA's aborted invasion of Cuba.

Elaborating on its statement, the CIA said Butterfield was granted access to sensitive CIA information in 1959 while working under the deputy chief of staff for Air Force personnel. But it said he "was in no way under the authority of the agency."

The CIA did say, however, that "the exchange of government employees by detailing them to other agencies or departments, as Director (William F.) Colby has pointed out, is a long-established and widespread practice in government."

"Those persons detailed to other agencies respond to the authority of the agency to which they are detailed. This form of duty is in no way a 'penetration' or 'infiltration' of the receiving agency or department."

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the White House has "no information to substantiate the allegation that a member of the previous administration was a secret CIA agent or indeed any kind of agent."

Butterfield's wife called Prouty's claim "absolutely false."

Proposals set to avoid land-tax rate hike

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Three tax proposals recommended by City Manager John R. Mansell to finance the 1975-76 Long Beach city budget without an increase in the property-tax rate will be submitted for City Council approval Tuesday.

One calls for establishment of a real-property transfer tax, and the others are for increases in the business and professional license fees and in the oil-production license tax.

Mansell says these steps are necessary if the property tax is to remain the same.

Considerable controversy surrounds the oil-production license tax, which Mansell has recommended be increased from 5 to 7.5 cents per barrel, effective as of last July 1. The first 300 barrels in any quarter are exempt.

At least two major oil companies wrote letters to Long Beach royalty owners, urging them to oppose the increase, contending it would cost them loss in revenue in their royalties. Numerous letters of protest subsequently were received by the city.

City Atty. Leonard Putnam said last week, however, that the tax is on oil producers, not royalty owners — unless a producer can, under his agreement with the royalty owner, pass along the tax.

Last March, the City Council gave first reading to an ordinance which would have increased the oil-production license tax from 5 to 10 cents a barrel. After opposition was voiced by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and oil producers, however, the council referred the proposal back to the city manager without taking final action on the change.

Mansell conferred with Chamber of Commerce officials and oil representatives and now is proposing that the increase be from 5 cents to only 7.5 cents.

In his preliminary budget, Mansell had recommended that the city switch its basis for business and professional licenses from one of a flat fee plus an added charge for each employee to one based on gross revenues.

After conferences with business representatives, however, the city manager has recommended that the basis for the tax remain the same, but that the fees be increased 150 per cent.

The existing fee schedule last was revised in 1962, Mansell said. In fiscal 1963-64, revenue from business and professional licenses was $748,497. Last fiscal year, it was $775,000, an increase of only $28,503, or less than four per cent, he said.

Fees in Long Beach are "far below" those of comparable cities, he said.

Under the present proposal, the base rate for business license fees would be raised from the current $30 plus $2 for each employee over two; to $75 plus $5 per employee over two.

The proposed new real-property transfer tax would be .55 per cent of the full market value of real property sales in the city and would bring in about $700,000 in fiscal 1975-76, Mansell said.

The money would be allocated, by ordinance, to the capital improvement reserve fund, to be used exclusively for redevelopment and community improvement programs, he said.

For many years, Mansell said, the city has allocated an average of $1.7 million annually—and appropriated $2.6 million last fiscal year—for capital improvements such as beautification projects, parks, recreation, police and fire facilities, and street and sewer projects.

Such expenditures have "contributed immeasurably" to making the city competitive with newer communities, and the city has "a strong commitment" to continue such improvement projects, Mansell said.

Under existing economic conditions, however, this level of expenditure can't be continued from general revenues, Mansell said, and the real-property transfer tax is considered a reasonable source to continue the improvements.

As proposed, the real-property transfer tax on the sale of a residence with a full market value of $35,000 would be $192.50, which would be included as part of the closing costs of the escrow.

Proposal for Huntington park facing more study

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

After a three-hour public hearing in Huntington Beach City Hall Friday, the California Parks and Recreation Commission ordered further study of the controversial General Development Plan for Huntington State Park.

After several motions for and against, the plan died for want of a second. The commission then unanimously approved a motion ordering Chairman John P. Starkey to appoint a subcommittee from members of the board to study the plan.

DURING the public hearing Mrs. Harriett M. Wieder, Huntington Beach mayor pro tem, and Vince Moorehouse, the city's director of beaches and parks, spoke adamantly against the plan.

The proposal, as it was presented by state landscape architect George Rackelman, called for $5 million worth of improvements, including construction of restrooms, lifeguard towers, concession buildings and landscaping. The money would be spent over five years on the 150-acre park just south of Huntington Beach.

Herbert Rhodes, executive director of the commission, explained that the commission was only being asked to approve a preliminary plan that would allow spending of $1,250,000 for undergrounding utilities.

MRS. WIEDEE and Moorehouse opposed the plan on grounds that it did not call for enough parking spaces and that the elaborate landscaping, which included the construction of sand dunes, could not be maintained.

Both urged the commission to study the plan further and make it compatible with the city's mile-long beach that is located south of the Huntington Beach Pier.

After appointing a committee consisting of himself and Commissioners Sally Altik and Arthur Robinson, Starkey ordered that the resolution, as revised by the committee and the staff, be put on the commission's September agenda and said action would be taken on it then.

THE BOARD approved, with almost no discussion, enlarging the present Least Tern Natural Preserve which is located at the southernmost end of the Huntington State Park.

When enlarged the preserve will total five acres.

The action was taken because the least tern, which is considered an endangered species, nests in Southern California and it is hoped that by providing more area in the preserve more birds will be born.

Panel limit sought

More could 'serve the city'

A proposal to limit membership on any Long Beach city committee, commission or board to two consecutive terms will be presented to the City Council at its meeting Tuesday.

The resolution to establish the two-term limit as council policy was filed with the city clerk after the agenda deadline, so it will be brought in as an "added item."

It states that the council "desires that as many citizens as possible be afforded the opportunity to serve the city" on its various committees, commissions and boards.

IF THE resolution is adopted, no one could serve more than two full, consecutive terms, except on those bodies whose term is less than three years. In such cases, the resolution states, the intent is "that those members shall serve no longer than six consecutive years, at the discretion of the City Council."

The two-term limit is being pushed by Mayor Thomas J. Clark, who said he believes there are "a lot of outstanding people" in Long Beach available for service, and that he would like to see them "rotated" through committee assignments.

IF A committee or commission member served outstandingly, the City Council could reappoint that person after he or she had been off the body for one term, Clark pointed out.

A majority of the city's committees and commissions have three-year terms, although the major ones have terms ranging from four to six years. Only two — the Municipal Golf Commission and the Library Book Committee — have one-year terms. The sister-city committees have indefinite terms.

Four-year terms are served by the members of the Planning Commission and the Redevelopment Agency. The Recreation and Water commissions have five-year terms, and the Civil Service and Harbor Commission members serve six years.

The matter of a limitation on terms was discussed by the previous council, but no action was taken.

Ship open house set next weekend

The Australian guided missile destroyer Perth will be on public display from 1-4 p.m. July 19-20 at Long Beach Naval Support Activity's Pier 7, instead of today and Sunday as reported earlier.

The ship is ending a year's overhaul at the Naval Shipyard and is scheduled to depart for Australia Aug. 22.

A Support Activity spokesman said visitors should enter via Gate 1 for direction to the pier by Marine sentries.

No mass Compton layoff

Compton's acting city manager, Daniel Lim, has dismissed one assistant city manager and two other officials but is reassuring city employees the actions are not a prelude to mass layoffs.

The discharged officials are Dave Crompton, the assistant city manager; Robert Harris, personnel director; and Roberta Palm, public affairs officer.

LIM IS himself an assistant city manager who has been in office 10 days. He has filled his old position with Jose Sanchez, assistant city controller, and has replaced Crompton with Ben Jenkins, formerly director of Compton's Model Cities program.

Permanent replacements for Harris and Ms. Palm, who served only briefly, will be recruited through civil service procedures after 90 days.

Lim said the dismissals were an effort to "normalize" conditions, not to stir things up.

HE ADDED, however, that the ratio of Compton employees, 800, to its population, 78,000, was "high."

Worker performance has not been ideal, either, he said.

"I think essentially you can call our productivity somewhat lower than most agencies. That's my pragmatic observation."

The City Council voted July 1 to suspend City Manager James S. Wilson Jr. and replace him on an acting basis with Lim.

A six-year employee of the city, Lim said he did not expect to become the permanent city manager.

Wilson, meanwhile, has filed a formal memorandum with the city clerk demanding a public hearing. The matter may be considered at Tuesday's council meeting.

LBSU gets HEW grant of $44,000

A grant of $44,000 for public service fellowships has been awarded to Long Beach State University by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Rep. Glenn Anderson, D-Harbor City, has announced.

The grant will support fellowships for graduate or professional study in the public service field. Out of 135 institutions which applied for the aid, 52 were accepted, including LBSU.

Newcomers to the city council, Millard Hamm and Russell Woolfolk, were seated the night of Wilson's dismissal. Hamm, Woolfolk and another councilman, Dr. Walter Tucker, voted for the suspension and Councilman Wilson Buckner and Mayor Doris Davis opposed it.

Wilson said there has been a persistent effort to have him hire Dr. Tucker's brother-in-law as an assistant city manager.

The effort began from the day he took over, Wilson said. Then, he qualified his remark.

"No not the day I came, the next day. We had one day free of being politicized."

"ACCORDING to the city charter," Dr. Tucker responded, "I cannot tell the city manager whom to hire."

In his memorandum, Wilson called on the council for "alleged reasons for your (suspension) action."

He also asked for a court reporter to make a record of the proceedings and observed that such a hearing would serve toward exhausting "all administrative remedies" before court action "though that may not be necessary due to your illegal action..."

He said that if industry cooperates, willingly or by legal compulsion, the cost of handling the poison wastes might drop to $10 million.

The Orange County Board of Supervisors soon will consider the problem of toxic waste disposal, and is known to be considering regulations to compel industrial firms to provide for disposal of their wastes, probably by contributing to a county-wide system.

legally can be put into the county's waste disposal lines.

The reasons, he explained, are that the toxic wastes damage the pipelines, the sewage treatment plant machinery, and if inadvertently combined with other chemicals might produce poison gases.

Industry disposes of the toxic wastes directly into the ocean, but Osborne warned that the practice of such "indiscriminate dumping" must be halted.

Big OC waste disposal cost feared

A staggering $83 million may have to be spent to dispose properly of the millions of gallons of industrial wastes generated in Orange County annually, according to the county's Environment Management Agency.

H. George Osborne, director of EMA, said the output of the "hazardous and toxic wastes" generated by industry tops 165 million gallons per year and that none of it

Cerritos offers kiosk ecology

By BOB GORE
Staff Writer

The concern for ecology shown by Cerritos' laws has long been the pride of city fathers.

Strict sign requirements for businesses, landscaping rules for industrial areas, a seemingly endless list of ordinances for residential developers and other areas are closely enforced.

However, there were always sore points. Unfortunately, they were where everyone could see them. As a matter of fact, you couldn't miss them.

BILLBOARDS. Massive, multicolored tributes erected by the housing tract developers peddling their wares to Sunday shoppers who can easily get lost navigating Cerritos' maze of recently built streets.

Not just 10 or 20 or even 50, but 158 of the massive wooden signs are scattered throughout the nine-square-mile city.

Sign permits were halted in late 1972 and the sign companies ordered to take their billboards down. According to Environmental Affairs Director David Celestin, very few firms complied.

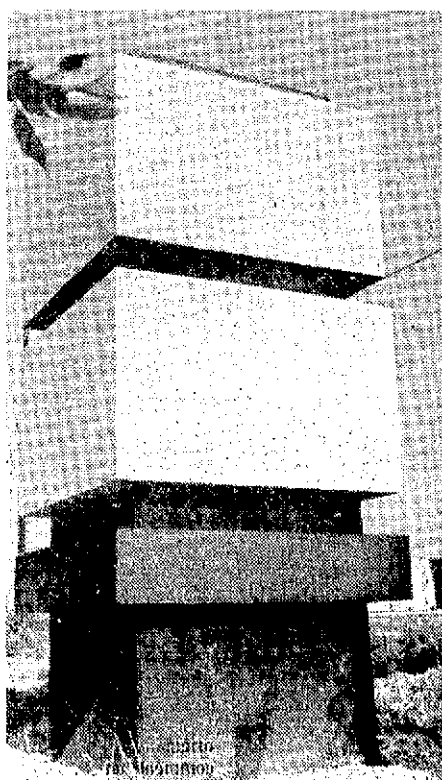

After several months of negotiations, the city and the sign people reached a compromise—the kiosk.

THE FOUR-sided display columns can be 11 feet tall and have three signs on each of their sides. The kiosks are usually made from wood and painted in eye-catching colors.

A permit from Celestin is necessary and the kiosk sites are being allocated on a first-come, first-served basis. Locations are limited to major intersections.

Celestin explained that a developer is limited to three kiosks. The sign firms own the kiosks and rent space to the developers. The first kiosk, as yet unpainted, has been set up on the northeast corner of 166th Street and Norwalk Boulevard.

And, Celestin reported, the large display signs have been taken down. Cerritos was one of the first building communities to reach such a compromise, he said.

ready to play Aristotle Onassis, explaining, "He was short and I'm short — of cash." along comes Tamara Dobson, 6-foot-2, the towering inferno, to say she's going to film a love story with Quinn, who's also 6-foot-2.
There's no doubt about it; while Quinn was wondering about who'll play his Jackie O, he was also thinking about Tamara's story which he had written for.
She was making everybody else in Quo Vadis look like pygmies — Morton Downey, Lee Radziwill, for example — as she dug into her salad flavored with rugula, and soft shell crabs. "Height doesn't make any difference any more," she said. "Tony just happens to be big. But he's a man, he's a ladies' man and also a man's man, he's handsome, he's macho, he's virile, agile, he's interesting, he reminds you of a bull. I enjoyed talking to him about our picture. We read the script together."

"It's historic, it's special," Tamara said, and some friends already saluted her at a party at La Martinique. "Tony Quinn and his wife and daughter were there, and also my sister, 6-2. My mother was there, she's a shrimp, only 5-9.

"We're going to the Jamaica Film Festival. I'm taking my mother. I have a rich mother, rich in heart and spirit and soul. She told me, 'I can't give you anything but good advice and a good name and that may be enough.'"

Tamara dates several men. To prove she doesn't think height's important, she cited one who's now in Paris. He's little. He's 6-6.

"Outside of that, I guess there's not much to Tony Quinn," I said to Tamara. "He's so tender," she added.

Tamara, the black beauty from Baltimore is riding high because her second movie, "Cleopatra Jones and the Casino of Gold," is to be premiered at the Apollo, 125th Street Harlem — "the first time a major picture company

Hitchcock the rare exception to change

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the transitory world of Hollywood, few things remain unchanged. Alfred Hitchcock is the rare exception.

The producer-director is now filming his 53rd movie, "Deceit," and he is doing so in the same thorough, unflappable manner he has employed since he started directing exactly 50 years ago.

Most movie sets are a frenzy of activity. Hitchcock's are as noisy as the reading room of a London club.

A visitor dropped in at Stage 28 of Universal Studio and found the director in his office-trailer between camera setups, reading the London Sunday Telegraph and Sunday Times.

"YOU get a much different view of the news by reading the London papers," he observed.

Hitchcock also can find accounts of the macabre murders in which his countrymen specialize. Something of a newsaholic, he gets daily deliveries of the London Times as well as the New York Times.

The director put down the newspapers and talked about "Deceit." He reported that the film is one day ahead of schedule despite the replacement of Roy Thinnes as the second male lead. There were rumors that Thinnes was fired after arguing with Hitchcock about the interpretation of his role.

Few actors — Paul Newman was one — have tried. None, including Newman, has succeeded.

"THE rumors are false," Hitchcock declared. "The fellow — what was his name? Oh, yes, Thinnes — didn't work enough for us to disagree. I recognized early that he wasn't strong enough."

"The character is a kidnaper, and he needed an air of menace. Thinnes didn't have it, and so I replaced him with an actor named William Devane, the chap who played President Kennedy in the television film about the Cuban Missile Crisis."

Hitchcock expressed satisfaction with the rest of his cast: "Bruce Dern is the male star; he plays an investigator for a fake medium. He has worked for me before in 'Marnie' and in the television shows."

Barbara Harris is the medium, who uses the information to surprise her clients. I was warned that she might not show up on time, but her conduct has been exemplary. She has a remarkable capacity to imitate a man's voice, which the medium does in the seance; she supposedly has a friend up there who tells her things.

"HARRIS does it so well I don't think I'll have to dub her voice."

"The part of the kidnaper's accomplice is played by Karen Black, also an accomplished actress."

He described the plot as two stories proceeding independently of each other until the four characters meet at the top of a pyramid. His major challenge is pulling off the kidnapping of a bishop as he is conducting a cathedral service.

He seemed to relish the prospect. He has enjoyed such outrageous scenes as a chase across Mount Rushmore "North by Northwest" and murder during a dymal crash in a concert hall "The Man Who Knew Too Much."

Hitchcock is borrowing from the news for at least one aspect of "Deceit": taped messages from the conspirators are communicated to a local radio program, a la the Patty Hearst case.

THE MYSTERY expert was asked if he ever expected the missing heiress to appear.

"I expect one day a little old lady in an old folks' home will rise from her wheelchair and say, 'I'm Patty Hearst,'" he theorized, acting out the role with a creaking voice.

"Ready, Mr. Hitchcock." A well-dressed young assistant director appeared at the door to announce that filming could begin.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Since you must accept broader responsibility, strive for as great a reward for your services as the situation warrants. What you seek now you must pursue for an extended period of time. Relationships increase, bringing both advantages and drawbacks. Today's natives favor the underdog, use their strong abilities to function as the "loyal opposition" in politics or statesmanship.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Attend to family and local functions in a conciliatory mood. Don't pursue business or commercial advantage, make extensive promises or accept any.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Excursions are the order of the day. Weighty decisions made now have very little future. Relax and enjoy your friends. Cultivate your aesthetic and spiritual nature.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You might as well go along with everyone's argumentative mood. Just don't take any of it too seriously. Minor details of social activity fail and require last-minute changes.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Play your role in community observances as usual. Then get out to see what has changed recently. Share pastimes and be a good loser or a gracious winner in competition.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You can't stick to your budget now, so don't grumble when expenses go awry. Modesty in planning prevents a waste of cash on trivialities.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep your mood light today. Postpone important efforts as far ahead as possible. Tomorrow will take care of itself, and what you need will come within reach.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): For once, you're justified in not setting too firm a schedule and in joining others for some fun. Bright ideas come easily and require considerable rethinking before you put them into action.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lay aside serious enterprise while you explore social contacts. Romance is momentarily stalled. But it's of no lasting consequence if you don't make too much of it.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You aren't going to get any financial reward from today's activities and will be fortunate just to keep expenses above normal. Concentrate on being pleasant.

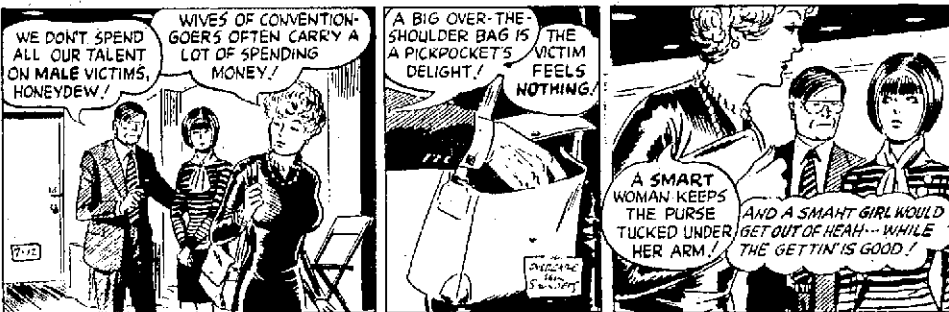

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's a grand day for personal discoveries. Stay on the move, renew old friendships and be a good listener. Youngsters provide puzzles to be solved later.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today is, at worst, a temporary detour from your normal rate of advancement, at best, a pleasant vacation. Neither case is permanent.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Come out of your recent moods; meet life in good humor. Make the most of every chance to enjoy what you have and what you can do with it without making any long-term commitments.

A&P's restructuring moves well for profit

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Restructuring of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. announced less than a year ago, is almost 95 percent complete, with some 1,175 of the announced 1,250 store closings already carried out.

At the same time, the supermarket chain operated profitably and would have been able to report a pretax profit of $31.7 million for the fiscal year ended last Feb. 22, if it had not set up a $200 million reserve to cover the restructuring cost.

What is happening, Chairman H.L. Scott told the recent annual meeting

IT ALSO is branching out into pharmacy, liquor and other departments its supermarkets never have had before.

In most of the discontinued stores, fewer than six workers were involved. There were a few large stores and some big warehouses closed. One in Newark, N.J., with 400 workers closed July 5 and one in Rhode Island with 100 workers a few weeks earlier.

At one point in the restructuring process, Scott said the warehouses and stores to be closed had about 7,000 workers but he said it was impossible to tell how many actually would leave the company, because with 35 large new stores opened in the first quarter of the new fiscal year, 14 expanded, and 200 more big new stores planned for the next 18 months or so, A&P will have a lot of new jobs open.

THE STORES being closed are genuinely out of date except for a few large ones that simply have proved disappointing locations.

For the most part they were doing $21,000 a week or less in sales. Scott told the annual meeting A&P, when it decided to restructure, had 3,468 stores doing an average of $37,000 a week.

O'Connor predicts end of 'family' in 2 years

By BOB MARTIN TV-Radio Editor

CARROLL O'CONNOR

Carroll O'Connor, who never expected "All in the Family" to be a success when it went on the air in January 1971, now predicts the CBS hit series will run for just two more seasons.

By that time, the actors' contracts with Tandem will expire — and TV's Archie Bunker says he will have had enough.

"I wouldn't want to renew," O'Connor was quoted as saying by Dave Kaufman in the showbiz publication Daily Variety. "I find it a very tiring form. It's the most exhausting work I've ever done, much more so than the movies and the theater."

"... I can't see myself doing another series."

"All in the Family" will move from its 8 p.m. Saturday time slot, where it has dominated the ratings for four and a half years, to 9 p.m. Mondays next fall. And O'Connor feels the shift is due to television's new "family hour" policy.

"I assume the reason we can't live with the 8-9 time slot is the purity policy," he told Kaufman. "I don't think we could keep the show the kind it is in the 8-9 time. If Archie can't say 'What the hell is Superior Court, that restrains her from working in show business except in "All in the Family." She has been a series holdout, although she reportedly earned about $6,000 a week for her role as Gloria last season.

A NEW COMEDY series on the order of "Laugh-In" makes its bow from 8 to 9 tonight on Channel 7 as a four-week summer show.

The ABC series, featuring a troupe of 14 performers, was to have been hosted by Rod Serling, who died on June 28. The network decided to omit the segments which were taped by Serling before his death.

Stars of the series are Franklyn Ajaye, Rhonda Bates, Kathrine Baumann, Jeannine Burnier, Didi Conn, Charles Fleischer, Wayland Flowers, Larry Ragland, Marion Ramsey, Rhlo, Jack Riley, Fred Travalena, Gailard Sartin and Richard Lee Sung.

THE HISTORIC joint space flight of American astronauts and Russian cosmonauts, which gets under way Tuesday, will get extensive coverage on all three major networks next week.

At noon today, CBS presents a half-hour special, "What's Apollo-Soyuz All About?," which is billed as a young people's guide to the space expedition — but which probably would be of interest to many older viewers, as well.

Walter Cronkite, who also will anchor the network's coverage of the space mission, will be the narrator.

On Sunday night, from 9:30 to 10:30, ABC will present "Union in Space," a documentary special on pre-launch preparations by both the American and Russian crews. Jules Bergman, ABC News science editor, will be the chief reporter.

"60 MINUTES," the outstanding CBS "news-magazine" series, moved to prime time for the summer, starting last Sunday night, and did well in the national Nielsen ratings, finishing No. 21 in viewer popularity among 62

this," as he sits down to eat, he isn't Archie."

O'Connor told the Daily Variety columnist that when the series started he thought the press would like it but that the public would hate it. Added Archie: "It was just the opposite."

It's still doubtful whether Sally Struthers, who plays the Bunkers' daughter, Gloria Stivic, will be back for the fall season. She's engaged in a legal tangle with Tandem Productions.

This week her lawyers said they will ask a higher court to overrule an injunction, handed down in life complicated when his boss' teen-age daughter arrives for a visit. James Cagney and Arlene Francis star (R)

Dodgers? 'They don't exist'

Big Red Machine unstoppable?

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds continued to demoralize the Dodgers Friday.

Johnny Bench's three-run first inning homer powered Cincinnati to a 4-1 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of a doubleheader that extended the rampaging Reds' season-high winning streak to eight games.

Pete Rose's bases-loaded infield hit climaxed a three-run sixth inning rally that gave the Reds a 4-3 victory in the opener.

Despite defeating St. Louis, 6-5, the Dodgers still lost ground as the Reds widened their lead in the N.L. West to a staggering 10½ games.

Bench's homer came in the opening inning after Rose's double and a walk to Ken Griffey. Victim of the homer, Bench's 19th, was rookie right-hander Randy Tate. An eighth-inning homer by Dan Driessen off Ken Sanders accounted for the Reds' final run.

Clay Kirby gained his seventh victory against three losses, but departed after six scoreless innings when he suffered a recurrence of an old shoulder injury.

The Mets' only run in the nightcap came when pinch hitter Ed Kranepool doubled with one out off Clay Carroll in the eighth. One out later Carroll, walked Felix Millan and John Milner to load the bases and reliever Will McEnaney came and promptly plunked Rusty Staub with pitched ball to force in the run.

McEnaney, who gained a save in the nightcap, also picked up a save in the first game by retiring the side in the ninth after Joe Torre led off with a single.

Tony Perez' 13th homer of the season, coming in the second inning, gave the Reds their first run in the opener and they sewed up the game with a three-run spurge in the sixth climaxed by Rose's bases-loaded infield hit. Fred Norman (5-3) was the winner.

"There ain't no way we can lose this thing," said manager Sparky Anderson after his team moved into its biggest lead of the season. "We can only give it away."

The Reds now have won 11 of their last 12, 17 of 19 and 39 of 48. Only a cock-eyed optimist would give the Dodgers a chance of overhauling the Reds the second half of the season.

Anderson proclaimed: "The players ain't worrying about L.A. no more."

They're just going out and playing baseball. L.A. to them, don't exist."

A year ago at this time it was a reverse situation with the Dodgers 10½ games in front of Cincinnati. This season, the Reds have been widening their margin steadily since they took the lead for good on June 7.

Even wins not enough for Dodgers

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS — It was appropriate, the way things have been going for Dodgers, that they won a game Friday night yet still lost ground to the Cincinnati Reds.

While the Dodgers were slipping past St. Louis, 6-5, with Bill Buckner driving in three of the runs with a triple and two singles, the Reds were lacing the New York Mets twice, boosting their advantage in the National League West to an awesome 10½ games.

"If you're asking me if we're giving up" manager Walter Alston replied to a post-game question, "the answer is no. The only thing I can say is that I can remember when the Dodgers once had a 13-game lead in August and still lost."

Alston declined to write off his club as Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson did Friday when he declared, "there's no way we can lose this thing."

Ron Fairly, the former Dodger who now plays for the Cardinals, hearing of Sparky's quote, nodded in agreement.

"The way they're playing and winning games, I'd have to say that Sparky's right," said Fairly, a former Dodger now with the Cards.

Alston, responding to Sparky's boast, only smiled and said, "If they go on and win it, nobody will say a thing about what he said in July. But if he blows it, well, you better believe he'll be reminded of it."

But Alston has other things on his mind, and it's not the Reds nor even the loud boos he heard Friday night from the 32,000 Busch Stadium fans who were vocal in their protest of the fact that the Dodgers' Mike Marshall and not their beloved Mad Hungarian, Al Hrabosky, was chosen by Alston for the All-Star team.

Alston's concern at the moment is the condition of Buckner, who is suddenly indicating he's starting to hit again, and his only catcher, Steve Yeager.

ROYALS BOSS BACKS UMPS

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Manager Jack McKeon of the Kansas City Royals took a verbal shot Friday night at baseball managers who blast umpires.

"It's about time some of the managers in baseball realize the tremendous job the umpires have done and are doing," McKeon said. "They ought to quit knocking umpires in general."

"It's a shame to see such unwarranted criticism of these guys...It's a personality feud. Umpires are human beings and they're going to make mistakes. Just because things don't go a manager's way, doesn't give him the right to ridicule the umpire. The umpires have families, too."

McKeon described the criticism dished out against umpires as "verbal garbage. When you start tearing down the umpires as umpires, you start tearing down the game of baseball. It's nothing but harassment."

McKeon admitted he has his "beefs and gripes like all other managers. But I don't carry it over from one day to the next."

Angels devise new way to lose to Tribe

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

This was the scene: In the seventh inning of a tie game Friday night, Cleveland's Rick Manning hit a semi-line drive to left-center and both Dave Collins and Mickey Rivers diligently and faithfully took off in quick pursuit. Sadly, they arrived at the angel's got the ball, Mickey.

Rivers to Collins: "Well, where is it?"

Collins to Rivers (pointing to the fence): "It's out there somewhere."

Sure enough, it was. Collins and Rivers succeeded only in catching up with each other and not the baseball.

It rolled all the way to the warning track as a delighted and appreciative Manning cruised the bases and received credit for an inside-the-park home run.

This was all it took for the Indians to snare a 5-3 decision, their 11th in a row at the Big A dating back to the dark ages — like July 17, 1973.

About all you can say for the Angels is that they are becoming absolutely ingenious at devising ways of losing.

Manning's homer, if you'll pardon the expression, was his first in the major leagues and it capped a three-run inning, undoing a three-run Angel outburst in the sixth which was constructed basically on speed.

The incredible happening, of course, was the conversation that was taking place between the two Angel outfielders while Manning was in the midst of gleefully running around the bases.

The general idea, manager Dick Williams pointed out, is to pick up the ball first and then your teammate. Rivers paused to help Collins to his feet before lighting out after the ball.

"I looked in his glove for it first," said Rivers, not at all sheepishly.

"It should have been my play and that ball definitely should have been caught," said Collins, who otherwise had an enjoyable evening with a double, two singles, a stolen base and an RBI. "There just wasn't any communication on the play."

At least until after impact.

"It looked to me like Collins broke in and that the ball was going over his head when they ran together," observed Williams.

Fortunately, the Angels

Cole wants breezes; Jack prays for gales

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (UPI) — Bobby Cole wanted more of the same sea breezes, Jack Nicklaus prayed for gale force winds and Johnny Miller forgot about the weather and wooed the bookies.

Friday's third round of the 104th British Open set the stage for perhaps the most wide open finish this oldest of golf classics has seen.

Ben Hogan's 72-hole Carnoustie record, 282 set in 1953 and tied by Billy Casper in 1968 was as good as dead. Arnold Palmer's open record, 276 in 1962 and equalled by Tom Weiskopf two years ago, was the next mark in range.

Overnight rains have softened the normally monstrous 7,065-yard, par 72 Carnoustie course throughout the week and then windless days have opened it wide for an avalanche of sub-par rounds and broken records.

Whether the weather would remain as is held the key to who would emerge from today's smoke with the title and $16,500 in pocket money. The final-round action will be televised on Channel 7

Cole, 27, held the lead after three rounds at 208, 12-under par. But at least 10 players were within six strokes, including the three leading money winners—Nicklaus, Miller and Hale Irwin, in that order.

"I hope it stays the same," said Cole, the 27-year-old South African who sank a 10-foot birdie putt at 18 for a second successive once unthinkable six-under-par 66 and the lead. "I'm used to this weather now."

"When conditions are bad, your playing experience counts," said Nicklaus, five strokes behind Cole's 204. "I'd like to see the conditions a bit changed. We can't have four still days for a British Open."

Miller recaptured his putting touch and was only two strokes off the lead after a 66.

South outlasts North

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

The South turned a remarkable 41-yard touchdown reception by Lynnwood's Mark Bell into the impetus it needed to defeat the North, 14-10, in the eighth Kiwanis 605 football game Friday night at Cerritos College.

Bell earned player of the game honors almost entirely on the one feat, a soaring reception between a pair of North defenders at the two only 52 seconds before halftime. After coming down with the ball, Bell ducked past equally surprised Rick Ponce (Pius X) and Dan Blankenship (La Serna) into the end zone for what turned out to be the deciding TD.

Although the only scoring in the second half before a turnout estimated at 8,500 was a 20-yard field goal by the North's Ed Luther (St. Paul), there was still plenty of suspense to the windup.

Luther, who passed 27 times in the game, drove his team 39 yards in the final 73 seconds to a first down at the South 40. At that juncture, he came up

RAGTIME WIDENS TRANSPAC LEAD

Ragtime, a 62-foot sloop from Long Beach, Calif., took advantage of increasing winds Friday to widen her elapsed time lead in the 2,225-mile Los Angeles-Honolulu yacht race.

The craft reported her position as 858 miles from Honolulu and 113 miles ahead of her nearest rival, Ondine, which was 971 miles out. Windward Passage was 14 miles astern of Ondine.

Moving into the overall handicap lead was Regardless, a 41-foot sloop skippered by Robert Cole of Hillsborough, Calif. Regardless is a Class C entry.

Yachts reported they were sailing in 12-15 knot northeast breezes indicating they have picked up trade winds.

At 1 p.m. PDT Friday the race was one week old. No matter which yacht finishes first, there is no chance of a new elapsed time record which is 9 days, 9 hours, 56 minutes, 48 seconds set by Windward Passage in the 1971 run of the bicentennial classic.

Swiftsure, the yacht that left the race Tuesday to rescue six people from the ship Atrante, which sank after colliding with an unidentified object, indicated it will remain in the competition with the six survivors still aboard.

Mrs. Nickolas L. Frazee, the wife of the Swiftsure's skipper, talked with her husband Friday and reported "He felt they had plenty of water and food on board for the additional six, but everything is being rationed."

Witnesses testify that Forbes 'speared, then beat' Boucha

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Three witnesses testified Friday that they saw Boston hockey player Dave Forbes congratulate the Bruins bench after he attacked Minnesota North Stars player Henry Boucha.

"I saw the coach (Boston's Don Cherry) put his arm around Forbes and pat him on the back," said Robert Utecht, the public address announcer for the North Stars.

Utecht and two spectators told of Forbes' alleged assault on Boucha during a National Hockey League game between Boston and Minnesota on Jan. 4 at Bloomington, Minn.

Forbes is charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon—his hockey stick—in the incident. Boucha required stitches and an operation on his eye, and still at times suffers from double vision.

Utecht and two season ticket holders, Roger McCabe and Mark Zelenovich, said they saw Forbes jab Boucha's eye with his hockey stick and then beat Boucha with his fists as the Minnesota player lay on the ice clutching his head.

After Forbes was hauled away from Boucha by several North Stars players, Zelenovich said, Forbes returned to the Boston bench and was congratulated by another Boston player, Ken Hodge.

"Hodge shook his hand and patted him on the back," said Zelenovich, 25, who said he has played hockey in high school and Minneapolis recreational leagues.

Questioned by Hennepin County Atty. Gary Flakne, Zelenovich said he has witnessed and been involved in "hundreds of fights" in hockey games. Zelenovich said players drop their sticks and usually their gloves before punching each other.

Utecht testified that Forbes "jabbed his stick at Henry's eye as though it was a bayonet." He said Boucha fell to the ice with his hands over his face and then Forbes began hitting the back of Boucha's head with his fists.

Utecht, McCabe and

Zelenovich all said Forbes was holding the stick with both hands about shoulder height and jabbed it at Boucha's head.

Testimony Friday afternoon centered on the beating Forbes allegedly gave Boucha, who had fallen to the ice.

Roger Erickson, a Minneapolis radio announcer, said Boucha fell to the ice and "blood splattered all over."

"Forbes jumped on top of him and began punching him with his fists," Erickson said.

A New Brighton man, Roger Lohr, said Forbes hit Boucha several times with his fists and then "grabbed two handfuls of hair and pounded his head on the ice."

Timeto Thinkrich (6) is favorite in tonight's Vessels Maturity at Los Alamitos.

Timeto Thinkrich, Pass Over renew rivalry 10 duel in Alamitos feature

Timeto Thinkrich and Pass Over, generally regarded as the finest four-year-old quarter horses in the country, resume their long-standing rivalry tonight in the $100,200 Vessels Maturity at Los Alamitos. Although the pair figure to receive most of the wagering support in the nation's richest four-year-old event, eight other performers will compete in the race named in honor of the founders of Los Alamitos. The Maturity will be the 10th head-to-head confrontation of Timeto Thinkrich and Pass Over in the past year. They hooked up for the first time in last year's Rainbow Derby at Ruidoso Downs when Timeto Thinkrich finished second to Pass Over's fifth and continued through last month's Chicago V. Stakes when once again the male out-ran the mare. Others entered in tonight's headliner are She's Precious, Wanta Go, Smooth Me, Coca's Kid, Miss Conclusion, The Good Thief, Heck and Moo Vin Mary. Despite holding an edge over Pass Over in their series, the "ladies" have dominated the Maturity—winning the first three editions. Charger Bar began the streak in 1972 and Osage Rocket and Elan Again have continued it over the 440-yard distance. Timeto Thinkrich's task will be to try to overcome the Maturity "jinx" as well as the three fastest qualifiers—Pass Over (mare), She's Precious (mare) and Wanta Go (gelding).

Pass Over registered the fastest qualifying time last week when she dashed the quarter of a mile in 21.77. She's Precious was clocked in 21.78 when she finished a nose behind Pass Over in the Maturity Trials, Wanta Go, supplemented to the race, hung up the third fastest time of 21.84. Timeto Thinkrich, whose bankroll is nearly $50,000—second only to Easy Date in quarter horse history—had the fourth quickest qualifying time (21.86) although he easily won his division of the Trials. Smooth Me comes into tonight's race with the fifth best time, 21.91. Other times: Coca's Kid (22.03), Moo Vin Mary (22.07), The Good Thief (22.08), Miss Conclusion (22.09) and Heck (22.10). Wheatland, the heavy favorite to win next month's $25,000 Marathon Stakes at $70 yards, chalked up his seventh successive victory Friday night in the co-featured fifth race, a 549-yard middle-distance event. A $3,500 claim here last July, Wheatland was nothing his seventh win in eight starts this year and raised his 1975 bankroll to $32,500 with Friday's triumph. Wheatland, who had won five consecutive 870-yard races before dropping back down to 549, took a narrow lead over Miss Pig Pig shortly after the start and maintained a slim advantage throughout most of the race. Then 100 yards from the wire, jockey James

13 fillies duel in wide-open stakes

Thirteen 2-year-old fillies go postward today in the $106,275 Hollywood Lassie Stakes determining their championship at the Hollywood Park meeting. The first 1975 event for the young gals that grosses more than $100,000, the Lassie appears a wide open event at six furlongs. However, the Fred W. Hooper entry of Bound for Pleasure and Roman Chimes could be the betting favorite as all of the young gal runners carry 119 pounds.

If all 13 start, the winning purse will be $57,525. Windy Welcome and Joy to the World each won a division of the Cinderella Stakes and must be considered among the favorites. In post position order, the 2-year-olds will have: Windy Welcome, Laffit Pincay; Roman Chimes, Bill Shoemaker; Pet Label, Donald Pierce; Sweet Robbery, Fernando Toro; Joy to the World, Howard Grant; Bound for Pleasure, Francisco Mena; Walk in the Sun, Frank Olivares; Queen to Be, Sandy Hawley; Cheer Me Lucky, Wayne Harris;

GOLF

I'd bet on myself," he said. "I've got momentum. I've never seen a field bunched up like this one. The Open record will be broken. No question. There could be a play-off."

The bookies took his advice to heart. The latest list of odds for the championship made Miller an 11-4 favorite followed by Cole and Nicklaus at 5-1.

Newton, the youngest contender at 25, used a revamped putting stroke to chop down the course record to 65 and, even though he was Cole's closest challenge, was lost in the excitement of the South African's 18th hole birdie.

Cole reckoned he would need at least a 68 to remain in contention over a course bound to feature pin placements in every hidden nook and cranny for the final day.

Nicklaus said he had to have at least a 68 and perhaps even better to capture his third British title and 16th major championship. He has won more big ones than any other golfer.

Newton reckoned logically that "the one who gets the breaks and who holds the putts will win it. If the weather stays like this, you could get a surprise winner unless Nicklaus or somebody goes insane."

The orgy of record low rounds, breaking or equaling Ben Hogan's 22-year-old mark of 68, reached 12 after three rounds—highlighted by Newton's 65. His only previous claim to a pro victory was in this year's Zambian Open.

Second-round leader David Huish of Scotland played with Cole and collapsed. The 31-year-old teacher pro shot a four-over-par 76 and was seemingly out of contention at 212.

Nicklaus, who was the 3-1 favorite when the day began, said, "I missed too many greens and I got into too many bunkers. A 68 is not too bad a score usually. But it's not so good when the others are shooting 65 and 66."

Alan Tapie, a second-year pro on the U.S. tour from Newport Beach, shot 67 and was going for a share of the course record until he came to grief at the 18th and bogied.
